Want to have a say in how video games are viewed and legislated in America?

Here's your chance to get involved!

The Entertainment Software Association exists to help give politicians the information they need to make smart decisions–and gamers get to voice their opinions and lend a hand in the effort. From copyright issues to online privacy to violent video games, the ESA is on the front lines, offering the truth about games, gamers, and the entire game industry. If you're tired of video games being misrepresented by politicians and special interest groups, here's your chance to help give them the real facts! Visit www.capitolconnect.com/ESA to find out what you can do to keep video games fun and free!

PLAYSMART

To help you make the right purchasing choices, here's a complete list of Mature-rated games in this issue of Code Vault:

Backyard Wrestling: Don't Try This at Home

By Eidos Interactive • PS2, Xbox

Blood, barbed wire, and babes abound, making Backyard Wrestling the biggest lowest-common-denominator guilty pleasure since Grand Theft Auto. The game's subtitle is "Don't Try This at Home," and that's for good reason

Devil May Cry 2

By Capcom • PS2

Devil May Cry 2 is loaded with bloodshed and cinematic sequences of monsters meeting their demise at your hands, along with a fair amount of harm inflicted on the main characters, Dante and Lucia. The game's dark tone and atmosphere have a good chance of frightening younger or more impressionable gamers.

Grand Theft Auto Double Pack

By Rockstar Games • PS2, Xbox

Two games in one package means twice the violent, adult, and controversial content. GTA III and GTA: Vice City are the current lightning rods for what should and should not be explored in games, so expect the most intense stuff you can imagine: violent crime (as performed by the player), prostitutes, lots of weaponry, carjacking, fighting and killing policemen, and many more dirty deeds done dirt cheap.

Halo

By Microsoft • Xbox

Like Half-Life, Halo is a story-based combat game that revolves around battle with alien creatures. The fairly intense action involves gunplay on foot and in a variety of vehicles, and plenty of blood—both human and alien—is spilled. While the violence isn't over the top, it's realistic enough and frequent enough to make Halo unsuitable for younger audiences.

Manhunt

By Rockstar Games • PS2

Manhunt reads like a grocery list of game content required for an M rating: graphic violence, profanity galore, and disturbing imagery that will sear your memory. You play a death-row convict who is given a second chance at life but only by dealing out lots of death.

True Crime: Streets of L.A.

By Activision • PS2, Xbox, GameCube

In True Crime: Streets of L.A., you play a cop who can be guided to stay within the confines of the law or to break them and suffer the consequences. Physical violence, shootings, and vehicular mayhem are portrayed with relative video-game realism. There are also very scantily clad women

Final Fantasy X-2

Unlimited Gil

During Chapter 1, choose to let O'aka board your ship until he can pay off his debt. During Chapter 1 and Chapter 2, pour all of your Gil into paying off his debt by buying a bunch of stuff from him and then turning around and selling it back to Barkeep. Repeat this until you've paid off his debt. Once O'aka's debt is paid off, you have created an unlimited cash machine until the end of Chapter 2. Just buy 99 High Potions from O'aka for 50 Gil each, then turn around and sell them to Barkeep for 150 Gil each. Repeat this until you get all the Gil you want or until you get bored.

Grand Theft Auto Double Pack: Grand Theft Auto: Vice City

Get a Tank

First, stock up on RPG rounds and be sure your armor and health are at full capacity (you also need to have a garage). Next, find a safe place, preferably up high, to fight off the onslaught of law enforcement that will come once you start shooting people. Use the RPGs on the helicopters and eventually on the tanks, which will arrive when you run up your Wanted Level high enough to draw them in. When the opportunity presents itself, jump down, hop into a tank, haul your tail through town to your garage, and, with luck, get the tank in there and save the game before you are killed. Now you are the proud owner of a tank: Take the wheel and enjoy the ultimate carnage as you smash your way through the city! Beware, this is an extremely difficult feat to accomplish, but once you succeed, the mass destruction you command is well worth it!

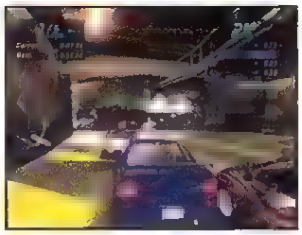
Need for Speed Underground

20" Rims on Smaller Cars



This works only in Underground mode. Trade your car in for a Skyline and purchase the 20" rims of your choice. Then, after you have chosen those rims, trade your car back in for the Civic, RSX, Integra, or any of the cars that can't get 20s. Once you have traded the Skyline for the car of your choice, you'll have 20s on it. If you want to see the difference, go to the Rims screen and highlight the rims you have "installed," but don't install them, or you'll mess up the cheat.

Call of Duty

Activision's smash hit revitalized the WWII shooter, and here one of the game's producers helps you serve with honor by offering advice on multiplayer and the hardest level.

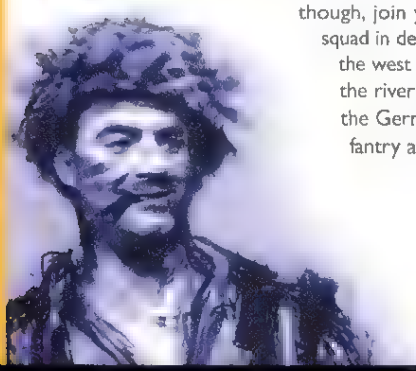
By Daniel Hagerty, associate producer, Activision

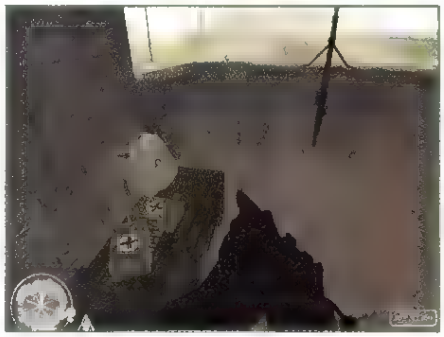
LEVEL WALKTHROUGH: PEGASUS BRIDGE (DAY)

In many ways, Pegasus Bridge (Day) is the hardest mission in the game, especially if you are playing on the Veteran difficulty level. It requires an enormous amount of patience, concentration, resource management, and cool-headed thinking to complete. You and your squad are under constant fire from all directions by endless waves of infantry supported by tanks. Worse still, you can't just hole up in a bunker and suck your thumb; you have to run like hell and take out a half-dozen tanks that are trying to overrun your position. It's white-knuckle gaming at its finest, and when you're through with the mission, just remember that a similarly equipped squad of actual, living British glider troops did what you just did—in real life—in one of the most celebrated and hard-fought battles of World War II.

HOLD THE BRIDGE UNTIL RELIEVED BY ALLIED FORCES

Captain Price and Lieutenant Davis are standing near Pegasus Bridge with you and a small stockpile of rifles, grenades, and first-aid kits. Within a few seconds, all hell breaks loose as shells start pounding your position. Get to cover as soon as possible—the bunker is an ideal place to hole up. You will see a stash of Panzerfausts near the entrance to the bunker. Remember these—they will become handy when the tanks start to attack. For now, though, join your squad in defending the west side of the river from the German infantry attack.





If you need health—and you most certainly will on this level—you can find health kits inside the concrete bunker, at the small cache of weapons outside the bunker, at the larger cache of weapons at the end of the west side of the bridge, and inside the bridge-control house next to the MG42. But if you're playing on the Veteran difficulty level, you will get no health on this level, so stay as undamaged as possible!

DEFEND THE WEST BANK OF THE CANAL

Make your way across the bridge. There is no huge need to get across fast. Take your time, stay behind cover, and pick off as many advancing Germans as you can. They will come from at least four locations—far to your left (SW), from inside the town, from behind the fence to your right, and from the far right around the buildings (NW).

Stay mobile—you may find a great piece of cover that will soon become compromised as troops move in next to or behind you. You must constantly scan for enemies as they will keep coming in from all over.

Once you make it across to the west bank of the canal, a small number of Germans will attack you from behind (the east side of the canal you just left). Take them out (they're along the wall near the bunker) either from long range with grenades or by running up to them while firing your Sten.

Note the stash of weapons on the west side of the bridge. You'll find lots of other weapons to use in case the Lee-Enfield and Sten are not to your liking. The German MP44 is a very useful weapon in this map. It is accurate at long range in single-fire mode and awesome at close range in any mode

After you fight off the Germans for a while (several minutes), they will begin to overrun your position. Price orders everyone to fall back to the bridge and orders you specifically to fall back to the MG42 machine gun to cover the fall-back maneuver. The MG42 is in the small brown control house on the northeast edge of the bridge. Get in there and jump on the machine gun.

Using short, controlled bursts, take down as many Germans as you can. Be careful—you can still get shot and take damage in this position!

There may be enemies firing at you that are beyond the width of the MG42's firing arcs. Jump off the MG42 and pull out any long-range gun you have to take them out.

ARMORED ASSAULT

Get off the machine gun as soon as you see the five-minute countdown timer appear in your HUD. This marks the beginning of the end of the mission, and things will really heat up. You may hear tanks rolling into the area, and Price will scream the location of the incoming tank to you for as long as it is alive. Your focus must now shift from anti-infantry actions to antitank actions.

Make your way swiftly to the Flak 88 gun. Check your compass for the location of the first incoming tank.

During the next five minutes, four to six tanks will enter the area. They will fire their machine guns at your squad, but they will train their main cannons on the Flak 88 itself. They will attempt to destroy the gun by any means, so you must kill them as soon as possible.

One tank will enter the area at a time from one of five locations—the road to the south (sometimes Price says "southeast" to refer to this general area, too), across the canal to the southwest, up the canal past the buildings to the north, and around the main buildings/bunker from the northeast.

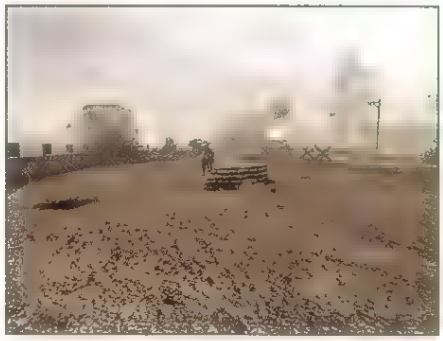
If the Germans destroy your Flak 88, run back to the concrete bunker and grab the Panzerfaust. Inside, there are a few Panzerfausts propped up against the wall.

There is a whole box of Panzerfausts in the trench outside of the bunker entrance, too. Grab one of these to take out any tank in range, but don't try to run with one—you'll move too slowly and make yourself a very easy target to hit. Instead, run into position while carrying another weapon, switch to the Panzerfaust, aim down the sight, fire, and take cover.

Here's the big secret: The safest way to complete this mission is to stay down in the trench closest to the Flak 88. You can creep up and poke your head out to pick off Nazis, who will be approaching not only from the four locations on the west side of the bridge but also from locations on the east side. They will come from down the road to the south, from the area around the wrecked gliders, from the north along the canal, and from the forest to the northeast.

Another good tactic is to crouch or lie prone in the shrubbery between the Flak 88 and the canal bank. You'll be sufficiently obscured so that enemies can't really get a good shot at you, but you'll still be able to peek out and pick off any Germans who get too close.

The last two minutes of the battle are nothing short of hellacious. Even after the tanks have been subdued, German soldiers continue to swarm the area from all points on the compass. Find as safe a location as possible and hole up. Make sure you have plenty of ammo for your short-range machine guns—you will be ambushed by successive waves of enemies.



Once reinforcements arrive, the German assault begins to crumble. Clear the area of any remaining enemies.

Once the Germans are all pushing up daisies, meet up with Price near the concrete bunker to end the level. Bloody well done!

MULTIPLAYER TIPS

A WORD ABOUT WEAPONS

One of the most important steps players can take toward masterful multiplayer skill is learning the strengths and weaknesses of every weapon in the game. There are four classes of weapons (excluding pistols, grenades, and specialty weapons like the Panzerfaust): submachine guns, automatic rifles, standard rifles, and sniper rifles. The vast majority of combatants opt for light machine guns when entering the fray, specifically the American Thompson, Russian PPSh, British Sten, and German MP40 and MP44. Although each is slightly different, they all allow players to move at a fairly good clip and still pack some moderately effective firepower. They are excellent at close range, especially on maps where there are many interior areas.

Heavy machine guns, on the other hand, require you to sacrifice movement speed for greater accuracy and firepower. The British Bren LMG and the American Browning Automatic Rifle (BAR) are examples of these guns. When you wield them, you move slower, but you are able to fire larger, deadlier bullets in tighter concentration over longer distances. It is not uncommon to see expert players using a Bren or BAR to pick off distant foes with a bullet or two.

Sniper rifles require a great deal of patience and practice to be fully effective on the battlefield. Your view is obscured when looking through the scope, and you're a sitting duck waiting to be blasted with a short burst of machine-gun fire. Unless you have nerves of steel and the ability to aim with pinpoint accuracy, you're better off with another weapon. In fact, if you're looking for accurate, deadly fire over a long range with fast movement and none of the liabilities of sniper rifles, look to the standard bolt-action rifles for the answer to your prayers.

Standard rifles are the most underrated and underutilized weapons in the game. Most players balk at the slow rate of fire that the German Kar98k, the Russian Mosin-Nagant, the British Lee-Enfield, the American M1 Garand, and the M1A1 Carbine offer, and grab a machine gun instead. Players willing to make a small investment of time acclimating themselves to the rate of fire on these weapons can see enormous rewards in combat, racking up swift kills while staying mobile on the battlefield.

I consider bolt-action rifles to be analogous to the fearsome rail gun from Quake III. Amateurs often lack the patience and skill to properly wield one, but you find the experts use it almost exclusively, especially on wide-open maps. The standard rifles fire very powerful, very accurate rounds, and often a single shot (especially a head shot) can kill someone instantly. This is great over range, especially when aiming down the sight, but can also be very effective in close-quarters combat. When rounding a corner and coming face-to-face with an enemy, you can plant a rifle slug right in his chest and drop him like a sack while he is busy attempting to wear you down with machine-gun fire. You may take a bit of damage, but nothing compares to taking out one's opponent in a single shot (and grabbing the health pack he drops).

In addition, the rifle/pistol combination can rack up big numbers on the scoreboard. You simply fire your rifle once and, if the target isn't killed instantly, switch to your pistol and unload a clip into him at close range. Pistols are wildly inaccurate at long range, but up close, they can provide just enough damage to take a severely wounded soldier out of the game fast. Once he's dead, switch back to your rifle and keep moving.

VERSATILITY

I can't overstate the importance of versatility on the battlefield. Though the game requires you to pick one weapon before entering a game, you can always grab a weapon off the ground. If you grab the right weapon, this instantly doubles your effectiveness on the battlefield. For instance, if you enter the game with a bolt-action rifle, you can immediately dispense deadly fire over long ranges with excellent mobility. As soon as you see a machine gun on the ground, by all means pick it up! Now you have the ability to flush out rooms, take out groups of enemies, and engage in close-range combat. You're equipped for every situation you could possibly encounter on any map—it's now up to you to make sure you have the right weapon equipped at the right time.

Maps often have extra weapons lying on the ground near spawn points, such as the fearsome and extremely powerful FG42. Grab these as soon as the round begins.

MANAGING YOUR MOVEMENT SPEED

Mobility is a crucial factor in Call of Duty. Being able to rapidly traverse open areas is critical to surviving incoming fire, and in firefights, the speed with which you can move out of harm's way can be the deciding factor in the length of your life. If you prefer weapons that make you move slowly, such as sniper rifles and heavy machine guns, you must consider switching to another weapon when you need to move fast, get to an objective, or keep up with a fast-moving squad. At the beginning of a round, slow-moving soldiers can make for easy pickings, especially on maps like Hurtgen and Brecourt where enemies can see you over great distances. When you need to get moving, switch your active weapon to your pistol or your grenades. You will be a bit vulnerable (unless you're some kind of preternatural genius with the pistol), but it will allow you to get moving and get to an advantageous position where you can whip out your weapon of choice and start taking guys out.

Remember, too, that aiming down the sight makes you move slower, and Panzerfausts are like lead boots—when you grab one, consider switching to your pistol or to a light machine gun, get into position, switch weapons, fire, and then move out.

GAMEPRO LABS

Which gadgets make your games better—and which ones don't?

Nuby Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Grip + Stick

Game Boy Advance SP
Rating: 4.0

You gotta love the GBA SP's size when it comes to portability—but playability, well, that can be a problem. If you're looking to avoid hand cramps, the bulbous Grip + Stick might help end your fatigue. Just slide your SP into the slot, and you'll find a joystick and larger buttons have replaced the normal control interface. The unit has some weight, so it feels solid in your hands. Unfortunately, the power switch is a little tricky to access (hint: grow a fingernail), and while the metallic green finish is very attractive, your enjoyment of this particular product will ultimately depend greatly on your dedication to Leonardo, Raphael, Donatello, and Michelangelo. But is it worth 10 bucks? Sure.—Bad Hare

Price: $9.99. Contact: Nuby, 310/302-9118, hotgamestuff.com

LASR GameCase

PlayStation 2
Rating: 5.0

Last year, LASR brought out the excellent GamePak, a backpack for carrying your consoles. The GameCase is the slightly lower-priced sequel, different in form but exactly the same in function. Inside the normal-looking, non-logo-laden nylon case lies a fitted pocket for your PS2 as well as sleeves for game discs, pouches for memory cards, and plenty of room for extra controllers, an EyeToy, and a few copies of Code Vault. Not only will the console be secure, but you also don't even have to take the machine out of the bag to play—just unzip the flap at the bottom, plug in your cables, and you're ready to play. The case comes with a heavy rubber handle as well as a removable shoulder strap; it's quality stuff. If you didn't like the backpack design, here's your excellent alternative.—Dan Elektro

Price: $29.99. Contact: LASR Accessories, 714/841-8835, lasraccessories.com

Nyko iType 2

PlayStation 2
Rating: 4.0

Chatting in online games is fun (and sometimes essential), but using a controller and a separate USB keyboard can be unwieldy. Why not combine them, says Nyko, which offers one of the only alternatives to Logitech's killer NetPlay controller. In that regard, the iType has two things going for it: It's smaller, and it's cheaper. The keyboard is designed for thumb action, so if you don't type well, don't worry—it's all hunt-and-peck anyway. Four programmable macros make common online phrases (such as "Help me, I am being slaughtered by a low-level spider" or "WTF d00d tHat is tEh suck") easy to express, which is helpful as actual typing is a bit awkward. While the controller is wider than normal (some rubber grips would have been nice), the buttons are still small and ovoid. However, once you get used to it, the iType 2 does work, and it's half the price of (and less bulky than) your closest alternative.—Dan Elektro

Price: $34.99. Contact: Nyko, 888/444-6956, nyko.com

The Legend of Zelda: The Ocarina of Time

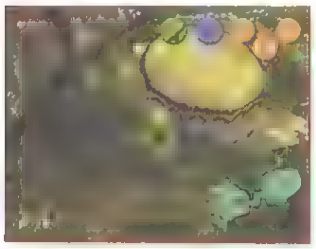
Link returns! In this ProStrategy Guide, we show you where to find all the key items in the game and how to play all the key songs, and take you through the end of the game—including the final battle with Ganondorf.

By Scary Larry and Bride of Scary

Chapter 1: Long Live the Link!

Kokiri Forest

First you'll need a sword. Go up the hill, crawl into the entrance past the Know It All Brothers house, and look for the small entrance in the mountainside. Crawl in and search around, and you'll find a chest with the legendary Kokiri Sword inside.



Need a quick and easy heart piece? Go up the ledge near Mido's house and turn right. You should be able to see the piece. Leap from the ledge to obtain it.

Before leaving to see the Great Deku Tree, walk into the shop and buy a shield. You can defend with the shield by pressing R.

The Great Deku Tree

Climb the vines and proceed to the first door. A Deku Scrub is lurking inside. Use your shield to bounce the projectiles back to the scrub and knock it out. Talk to it and it will give you a clue.

In the room with the slingshot, you must turn toward the door and target the small ladder above the entrance. Use the slingshot to lower the ladder

Go back to the main spiral walkway and climb up the next set of vines. Go through the first door you come to and leap across the rocks until you reach the chest. You'll find the Compass which lets you see hidden rooms and treasure on the Dungeon Map. Now go to the left.

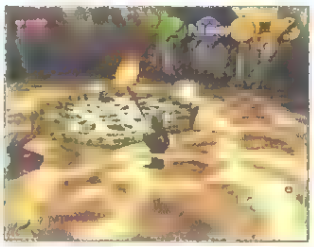
You can only kill the spider guarding the way to the next door by shooting its underbelly. After destroying it, go to the chest. See that spider on the wall? It's a rare Gold Skulltula. Grab the token it leaves behind (you'll need it later). There are five Gold Skulltulas in every dungeon.

In order to get out of the room, take one of the Deku sticks and light the unlit torch in the room. It triggers the door. Remember this trick: You'll be using it much more later on.

Now go to the highest point on the spiral walkway and kill one of the large spiders guarding the web. Walk off the edge of the walkway and land on the web in the middle of the floor. You'll break through and land in an underground cavern. Kill the two Gold Skulltulas down here, then light a Deku and carefully walk the torch across the water and burn the webs guarding the door.

Enter the room and talk to the Deku Scrub (after beaning it with its own projectile). It gives you a code (2-3-1). This is the order you'll have to knock off its brothers later on. When you're done talking to it, hit the switch above the door with your slingshot and exit.

When you enter the large room with the design on the floor, avoid walking over the shadows or you'll unleash the Gohma Larva. Instead, use a Deku stick to burn the web to the small portal on the right side of the room.



You're back in the first room you dropped into. Push the large gray block into the water, then run and light the Deku from the torch. Go back to the webs in the middle of the floor and swing the Deku at them. They'll burn and drop you through

You end up in the room with the three Deku Scrubs. Remember the order? Knock off the middle one, then the one on the right, then the one on the left.

Boss

Queen Gohma

To kill the queen, target her eye with the slingshot, then slash her with the sword when she falls. Don't get too close or she'll claw you. When she climbs the walls, keep her targeted, and slingshot her eye when it turns red. She'll fall to the ground and you can slash her again. Make sure to grab the Heart Container after you've killed the boss. You'll also receive the first stone, the Kokiri Emerald, following a short interlude and a long cinematic sequence.

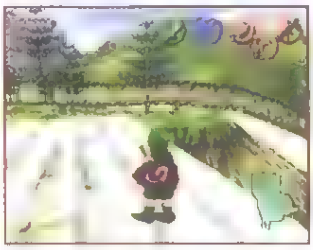
Hyrule Castle

Now go to Hyrule Castle (at the other end of Kokiri Forest, opposite the Great Deku Tree), and Saria gives you an Ocarina to play. Head to Hyrule Castle, which you'll notice is straight ahead of you when you leave the forest.

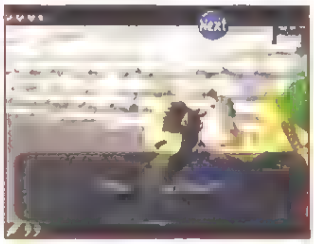
If you don't get to the castle before sundown, you'll have to wait until sunup because they close the drawbridge at night. When the bridge is down, run up the left or right chain, then jump toward the entrance to get a red Rupee.

Once in town there are different games to play, like Bombchu Bowling or Shooting Gallery. Like in the Zeldas of old, these side games can get you some interesting items; unfortunately, though, you can't play them until you've talked to the gate guard in Kakariko Village.

There's a small girl named Malon in the middle of the square. Talk to her, then head toward the castle (between the Archery Shop and the Happy Mask Shop).

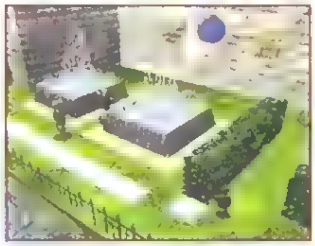


Climb the vines before the castle gates. Walk toward the guard on top of the gate, and he'll throw you out. Go back to the vine and Malon gives you a gift. Now climb the vines again, this time jumping off the gate to the other side. Walk toward the castle (looking for outcroppings on the walls to climb), but stay far from the guards, who are now on alert.



When entering the castle grounds, walk toward the moat, jump in, then climb out just before the grate. Go to the sleeping man near the edge of the moat and wait until morning. The hatched egg will produce a chicken that will rouse the man from his sleep. Talk to him after he wakens and he'll run off.

Push the two blocks into the moat. When you hear the chime, climb on top and leap over to the small opening in the wall. Crawl through and avoid the guards as you make your way toward Zelda.



If you're caught in the guards' courtyard at night, they'll immediately throw you out. If you grab the red Rupee near the guard, it will spring a trap, so move stealthily around the guards.

Magical Mystery Tours

Spin Attack

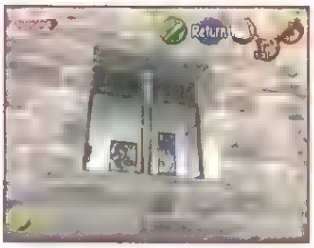
In order to use magic, you have to learn magic—and it ain't easy. After defeating King Dodongo and getting the Goron Ruby, travel up the mountain, veering left at Goron City. Blow up a few boulders and travel to the peak of the mountain. Next, play Zelda's Lullaby on the Triforce emblem and a fairy will reward you.

Din's Fire

Climb the vine near Hyrule Castle and jump across the gate. The road ahead splits: to the left is the castle, to the right a boulder. Bomb the boulder, enter, and play Zelda's Lullaby in order to receive Din's Fire, a magic attack that engulfs Link in a fireball.

Farore's Wind

Go to the right just before you see Jabu-Jabu and take the path (swimming through the water), then go to the island with the single tree. Bomb the wall and enter the Fairy Fountain. Play Zelda's Lullaby and receive a warp magic that creates a safe spot.

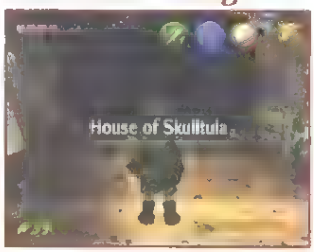


When you reach Zelda's courtyard, look in the far window (you'll see some images from Super Mario 64). Talk to Zelda, and she'll give you a letter that will gain you some much-needed access.

Talk to Impa next, and she'll teach you Zelda's Lullaby. This is the first in a series of songs you'll learn that will change time, call on fairies for help, and open doors. Use the Lullaby wherever you see a Triforce emblem. Now let's head to Lon Lon Ranch for some helpful items.

Lon Lon Ranch (in the center of Hyrule Field) is a side quest with two helpful items: the Milk Bottle and Epona's Song. To get the Milk Bottle, find Talon (the sleeping man near the moat) in the hen house and grab the three hens in the amount of time indicated. The Milk Bottle will restore your health twice, but more importantly, it gives you an empty vessel to buy other things like potions and fish. (To learn Epona's Song, see the sidebar "Two Songs Make a Right.") Now it's off to Kakariko Village.

Kakariko Village



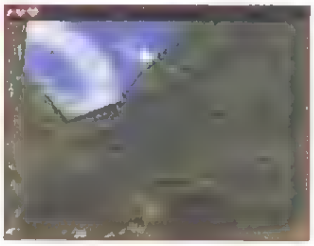
Kakariko Village is the home of the House of Skulltula (the building to the right of the entrance). Here you can trade 10 Skulltula tokens for a larger bag to hold money (200 Rupees). You'll need that bag soon, so collect as many tokens as you can.

Talk to the guard near the entrance to Death Mountain. Show him Zelda's letter, and he'll ask you to grab a mask for him in Hyrule's Happy Mask Shop. This also opens up the other games inside Hyrule. Although not necessary for the game's completion, they're fun side quests.

Death Mountain

Head up Death Mountain. You'll find the entrance blocked. Keep going up the mountain until you find the entrance to Goron City. Go to the very bottom of the city and play Zelda's Lullaby to open the closed door down there.

Walk into the room and talk to the Goron King, Darunia. Play Saria's Song and the happy little king will dance around, then reward you with the Bomb Bracelet, which lets you pick Bomb Flowers. He also sends you on a quest to destroy the monster in Dodongo's Cavern



Leave Goron City and make your way along the right wall. You'll come across a Bomb Flower and a railing. Throw the Bomb Flower over the railing to open the entrance to Dodongo's Cavern.

Dodongo's Cavern

Enter the cavern and bomb the first door. In the next room, jump across the pit to the laser, then move to the left and bomb the second door. Grab the Dungeon Map and jump back across the pit to the doors on the other side. Now bomb the far door and enter the hall with the Baby Dodongos (after you kill them, they explode, so be careful).

At the far end of the hall, place one of the stone statues on the switch. Climb up and go through the door. Kill the two bats in the hall and go through the far door. Now you'll face off against the Lizalfos. Use your shield for defense, then wait for their attack. As soon as they're finished, attack them.

DID YOU...

...UNLOCK THE SECRETS IN THE HOUSE OF SKULLTULA?

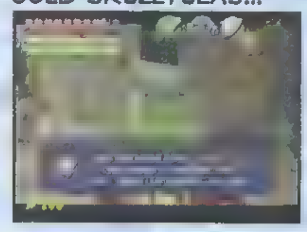
THE CURSE

The House of Skulltula is cursed, some say by the occupants' greed, others say by Ganondorf's evil. Either way, as you collect Gold Skulltulas throughout Hyrule, the members of this house reward you kindly for them.

AFTER TURNING IN 10 GOLD SKULLTULAS...

...you get the Adult Wallet. This allows you to carry 200 Rupees at a time (compared with the 99 you could carry before). Now you can purchase items that were too pricey at first.

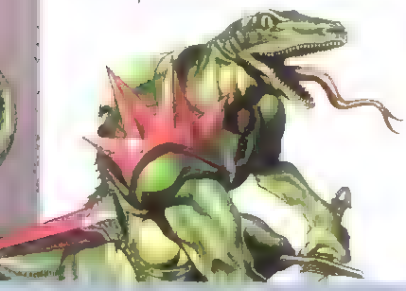
AFTER TURNING IN 20 GOLD SKULLTULAS...



...you get the Stone of Agony. It's the most useful part of the game, and you need a Rumble Pak to make it work. If you aquire the stone, it automatically makes your controller rumble whenever you're near a hidden area.

Go through the steel door that's now unlocked and into the hallway where you'll come across more Dodongos. These bomb-swallowing creatures are protecting some unlit torches. Fire up the torches and go through the door at the far end.

Step on the switch in the hall to unlock the door in the main room. Jump back to the laser-beam creature in the middle of the room, then across to the unlocked door in front of you. Bomb the door on the left and grab the Compass in the chest behind the statues (bomb one statue and he'll move). Now bomb the statue until it's destroyed in order to reopen the door.



Go through the door and place a bomb directly between the two rows under the stairs. When the bomb goes off, a stairway will appear. Follow it.

Climb the staircase to the top and you'll come across a Gold Skulltula. Kill it and proceed to the door opposite the web. Push the statue near the ladder (kill the bats first) and hit the switch to open the door. Go down the hall and cross the bridge.

In the next room, avoid the floor razors and make your way to the stone block. Pull the block out from the wall, climb up, and pick the bomb from the flower. Time the bomb so it ticks down while you're holding it, then throw it at the last minute to blow up the wall opposite you. Enter the hallway and hit the switch above the flames to extinguish them (this is timed, so quickly do it).

Follow the hall and you'll eventually come across some Baby Dodongos. Dispose of them and enter the next room. More Lizalfos! Remember their pattern? Destroy them and leave through the door to the left. Now you have a room with two flames to extinguish. Aim for the switch on the wall above and make your way across to the next platform. Turn left and hit the other switch. Now get out!

In the next room, jump across to the hall, but veer right to collect the Bomb Bag. Now you can hold 20 bombs at a time. Leave through the hall and step on the switch. You are now above the giant skull. Next, take the rope bridge and drop a bomb into each eye of the skull.

Jump down onto the skull and then to the platform to enter the skull's mouth. Go into the next room and kill the bats, then head to the hallway on the right. Kill more bats, then jump down to the floor and search for some stone blocks. Jump over the first block and go through the door on the opposite wall of the entrance. There's a Gold Skulltula inside. Now climb the stone blocks again and run down the narrow ledge. Destroy the pots and enter the doorway. Push the block off the ledge, then move it to the center of the room to open the door to the boss.

AFTER TURNING IN 30 GOLD SKULLTULAS...

...you receive the Giant's Wallet. You can now carry up to 500 Rupees. Don't spend them all in one place.

AFTER TURNING IN 40 GOLD SKULLTULAS...

...you get the Bombchu. Actually, you probably already know that you can buy the Bombchus in the alley shop at the Hyrule Market (at night). But still, a gift is a gift.

AFTER TURNING IN 50 GOLD SKULLTULAS...

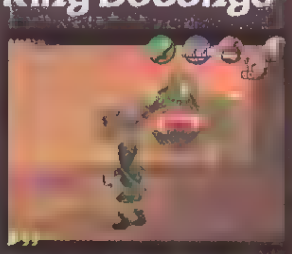
...you get a heart piece. It may not seem like much, but having as many hearts as possible helps in your final battle against Ganondorf.

AFTER TURNING IN 100 GOLD SKULLTULAS...

...you get a Gold Rupee. There are 100 Gold Skulltulas in the game, but you must search high and low for them. The Gold Rupee (worth 200 Rupees) seems like small pickings after all that work!

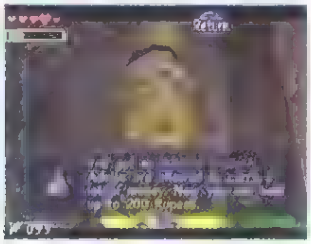
Boss

King Dodongo



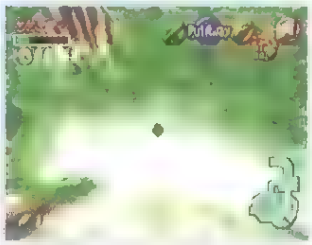
Place a bomb in the middle of the room to open a hole in the floor. Jump in and face King Dodongo. To beat him, throw bombs in his mouth when he roars, then slash him when he's stunned. When he rolls toward you, stay on the inside corners to avoid him. Three rounds should do it. After another wacky cinematic with Darunia, he gives you back the Goron Ruby he took from you.

Zora's Domain



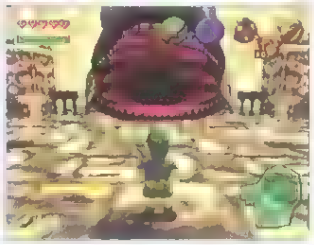
Before entering Zora's Domain, be sure you have at least 10 Gold Skulltulas or you won't be able to progress. When you get 10, go to Kakariko Village and enter the House of Skulltula. Talk to the freed prisoner and he'll give you an Adult Wallet.

To get to Zora's Domain, follow the river near Kakariko Village. Zora's Domain is between Kakariko Village and Kokiri Forest. Jump across the river at the end and follow the river upstream. Now jump across the spot where there are brown patches of dirt on the ground. Follow the path until you come to the spot with the Triforce symbol on the ground. You know what to do. Jump into the entrance that appears.



The first order of business in Zora's Domain is to find the Scale. It enables you to dive deeper than before. Find the king, then travel to the left and follow the path up to the Zoron, who asks you to play a game of Diving for Rupees. If you successfully get the Rupees in the time allotted, he gives you the Scale. Hint: Put your shadow over the Rupee and dive.

Jump back into the pool and find the underwater entrance. Go into it, and you'll come out in beautiful Lake Hylia. Swim forward to the first pillar on the right, then dive underwater to find a Bottle with a message in it. Take the Bottle back to the king, and after he goes through his speech, take the Bottle back to the shop near the entrance and buy the fish.



Go through the Royal Doorway the king opened up, and when you come across Jabu-Jabu, feed him the fish. To the right of Jabu-Jabu is a path that leads to another magic. (See the sidebar "Magical Mystery Tours.")

Inside Jabu-Jabu's Belly

Once inside Jabu-Jabu, watch for Shaboms (bubble-like creatures), Octoroks (from the previous Zelda games), and Biris (electric jellyfish that sting when you get near). Also look up for switches, like Jabu-Jabu's tonsils, which open doors when hit.

Follow the path and you'll soon come across Princess Ruto. She's a stubborn, defiant, pushy little fish, so pay close attention to her. You'll have to carry her on your back for most of the level. There are also two Gold Skulltulas in this room. Follow Ruto into the hole she drops into. Talk to her again, then pick her up.

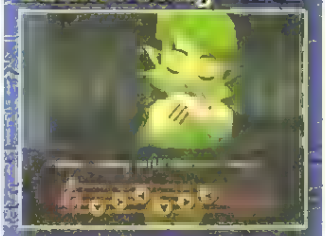
Weave your way through the level until you reach the room with the switch in the center of the water. Throw Ruto up on the opposite ledge, then get the Gold Skulltula to the right. Hit the switch, grab Ruto, and head out the door.

Two Songs Make a Right

Epona's Song

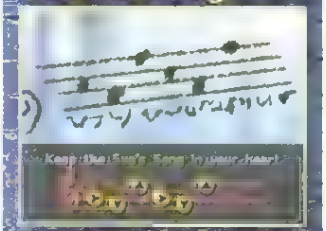
After getting the Bottle at Lon Lon Ranch, go to the corral and talk to Malon. She'll teach you Epona's Song, which will help when you're older, maybe even summoning a filly to ride across the land.

Saria's Song



Go back to the Lost Woods in Kokiri Forest (take the ledge behind Mido's house). Find your way to the Sacred Meadow (follow the music), and Saria will teach you a song that summons her in times of need.

The Sun Song



To change night into day, go into the graveyard in Kakariko Village. Go to the very far end of the graveyard (opposite the entrance). You'll see a Triforce symbol; play Zelda's Lullaby and an entrance will open. Jump in, weave your way to the back of the underground tomb, and kill all the bats to open the next door. When in the room with the acid pits, hug the left wall until you make it to the next door (if the enemies in here look at you, you'll freeze). Now go up to the headstone and learn the song. The song will also freeze the ReBead creatures that gaze at you.

Go down the hall, strike a tonsil, then head through the door and knock off the Octorok. Wait for a platform, then take it for a ride up. Go to the right, through the next two doors, and veer to the right. You'll come across a floor switch. Step on the switch and proceed.

The next room contains the swooping manta-like Stingers. Target them, slingshot 'em, then wait until they stabilize, and shoot them again. When they're all dead, a chest will appear with the Boomerang! You can use the Boomerang to grab far-off items, to activate switches, and to engage in combat. Grab Ruto and head out. Go to the direct opposite end of the hall and place Ruto on the switch.

Go through the door alone and fight the Parasitic Tentacle. The easiest way to destroy it is to target the middle, use the Boomerang, then back off. As you approach, it swings toward you, so carefully edge toward it while it's targeted. When you destroy it, you receive the Dungeon Map. The tail is now gone from the other door. Go through the door, destroy the Shaboms in the allotted time, and get the Compass. Go back out the door. Don't worry about where Ruto is yet.

Wander around and eventually you'll face another Parasitic Tentacle. After you defeat it, return to the door that the Tentacle guarded, and enter. Kill all the Biris and the Tentacles in this room, then head straight out the door and run in a straight line down the hall, going through all the doors. You'll see Ruto again. Kill all the Biris, pick up Ruto, and go into the hole to the right of the entrance (not the one that's directly in front of the room's entrance).

Walk down the hall after you drop into the hole and enter the chamber with Ruto's stone in it. Throw Ruto on the ledge, and get yourself ready to face Bigocto.

Throw the Boomerang, stun Bigocto, then hit him in the ass when he turns around. If he runs toward you, throw the Boomerang again, and he'll turn around. When this is finished, don't go through the door, but rather jump onto the platform and ride it to the top.

Run down the hall and into the room with the jelly pillars. Boomerang one pillar, and when it solidifies, jump onto it and boomerang the next one. Jump on that one and head out the door.

In the next room, jump across to the ledge and wait for it to lower. Pick up a box near the base and carry it to the switch. Place it on the switch and go through the door. Kill the jellyfish, climb the ledge in the middle of the room, and target the switch behind the glass (go right up to the glass and start to edge left while targeting). There's also a Gold Skulltula in here. Go out the door.

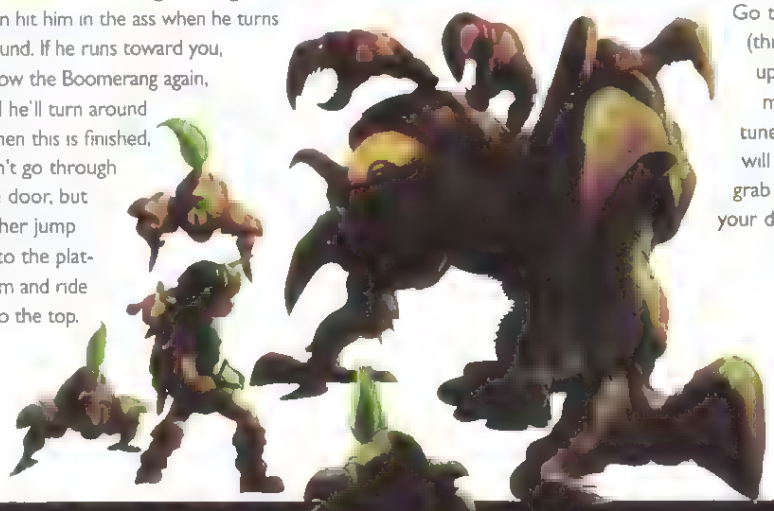
Boss

Barinade

Destroy Barinade's tentacles first (target 'em, then boomerang 'em), then go after the Biris. Between rounds, try to hit Barinade's body to stun it, then hit it with the sword. As Barinade sinks into the ground, don't go after the body or you'll get electrocuted. When he rises into the air, repeat the Boomerang stun/sword slash combo. There are some pots around the edge of the room to help you out with hearts. When he's defeated, pick up your Heart Container and go toward the light.

After a brief interlude, Ruto gives you Zora's Sapphire! You now have all three stones! Return to the castle to tell Zelda.

After seeing Zelda taken from the castle, retrieve the Ocarina from the moat. Zelda will teach you a new tune (through telepathy). Go to the Temple of Time (through the alley on the upper-right side of the market) and play the tune. The temple's doors will open. Go through, grab the sword, and claim your destiny!



Chapter 2: You Take The Hyrule

Kakariko Village

Head back to Kakariko Village and go to the windmill. Talk to the musician and show him the Ocarina. He'll teach you the Song of Storms, which you'll need later. Now go to the graveyard.

Go into Dampe's hut near the graveyard entrance and read his diary, then find the gravestone with the flowers in front of it and pull the gravestone from behind. You'll uncover a hole that leads to Dampe's ghost!

Enter Dampe's grave, where you find the gravekeeper's spirit in a racing mood. Follow him through the level, using the flames as a guide. If you win, he'll give you the Hookshot. Now you can grapple from different areas.

Temple of Forest

As soon as you arrive, the mysterious Sheikah teaches you the Minuet of the Forest. This allows you to warp to the Temple of Forest at all times. It's also useful because there's a fairy fountain in the maze that you'll go to often.

Use the Hookshot to grapple to the Temple of Forest's main door. Target the large wooden tree, then grapple up and enter the doorway.

Kill the two wolves, then climb the vines in the foyer. Jump to the platform and kill the Gold Skulltula. Now leap to the next tree and get the key from the chest. Enter the hall and kill the giant spider, then go through the door.

You are now in the main hall. Head to the first archway on the left where a large stone blocks the door. Play the Song of Time and the block disappears, revealing a door. Go through the door

In the next room, look for the vines on the wall and climb up (but first use the Hookshot to rid the wall of spiders). Go through the door. Now kill the flying skull by stunning it with the Hookshot, then pounding it with the stone. A chest appears. Grab the Dungeon Map and go out the door.

See that stone above the balcony opposite you? That's a grapple point. Grapple over there and press the floor switch. The water will drain from the well. Go jump in the well

In the well, pick up a few hearts, grab the key from the chest, and climb the vines back out.

Go back to the main hall and take the staircase to the left (a Gold Skulltula's on the wall). In the hall, defeat the Bat Skull, then go into the next room and fight the two skeleton warriors (use Deku nuts to stun them, then use the power slash). After defeating them, a chest appears. Grab the key inside and leave the room.

Enter the main hall again and take the stairway to the right. Kill the giant spider in the hall, then go through the door. You should be in a high-walled room. Kill the Bat Skull, then look for the ladder. Climb up it and push the boxes around, following the arrows on the floor, until you hear audio signals. Keep climbing until you reach a door with an Eye switch.

Go through the door don't worry about the twisted walls—and down the hall. In the next room, ignore the chest on the wall and go through the door. Beware the ceiling monsters!

Descend the stairs—ignore the pictures and voices—and go through the door at the bottom. Battle three skeleton warriors to get the Fairy Bow. Leave the room the way you entered. Now creep upstairs and target the pictures in the hall Shoot an arrow into all three, and you'll battle a ghost. Defeating the ghost relights the torches in the main hall

Return to the Eye switch. Shoot an arrow into the switch and the hallway twists back into shape Now walk back down the hallway, and you'll notice the chest is on the ground. Open it to get the Boss Key. Drop into the hole next to the chest.

Kill the two Bat Skulls, then go through the door and proceed to the first right with a door. Enter

Stun the crawling hand with the Hookshot, then use the power slash to kill it. Kill the three mini-hands that appear, and you're rewarded a chest with a key

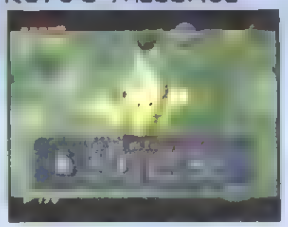
DID YOU...

...GET ALL THE BOTTLES?

LON LON MILK

Throughout, you'll want to stock up on Milk Bottles, which let you capture fairies (which act as sort of an extra life). The first Bottle is from Talon at Lon Lon Ranch. Play Catch the Cuckoo, and he gives you some Lon Lon Milk (which restores your energy). The Bottle can also be used for other things.

RUTO'S MESSAGE

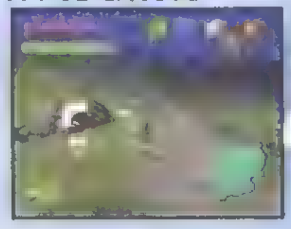


You'll find another Milk Bottle in Zora's Domain. When King Zora asks you to find Princess Ruto you'll swim through an underwater cave and end up in Lake Hylia. At the bottom of the lake is a message—in another Bottle!

I FEEL LIKE CHICKEN TONIGHT

If you find all the chickens in Kakariko Village and return them to the Cuckoo Lady, she'll reward you with a Bottle. Some chickens are hidden well—check out the boxes near the homes for one and use a chicken to fly over the fence near the windmill for others.

A POE EXCUSE



As teen Link, collect 10 big Poes in Hyrule Field and return them to the Poe dealer in Hyrule Castle. He resides in the old guardhouse (an excellent source for Rupees, too). You can find Big Poes only while riding Epona.

Exit through the door to the right. You're back in the high-walled room. Climb up again, send an arrow into the Eye switch, and return to the room where you received the Fairy Bow. Now take the door opposite the one you entered.

Walk upstairs and exorcise the ghosts from the hall pictures. You get a Compass after defeating them. Go into the door at the top of the stairs. In the next room, walk to the door on the right, then ready the Bow and enter

You're now in a room with a spinning platform that has a fire in the middle of it and an Eye switch protected by ice on the wall. Stand on the platform and shoot the ice through the flames to melt it. Enter through the door and into the room with ladders at the end of the hall. Jump through the new door at the bottom

You're in a room with a falling ceiling. Run through the gaps, avoiding the spiders, but opening the treasure chests (which are your only safe areas). Go into the puzzle room.

Shoot the picture to start the sequence. Arrange the puzzle so it matches the portrait on the wall. You're timed, but don't worry about getting it on the first try — if you lose, it resets with more time. Once the puzzle is complete, a ghost appears. Defeat it and go through the door.

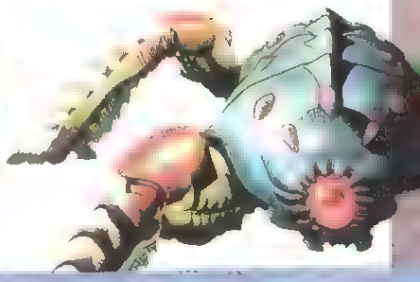
Return to the main hall and use the Hookshot with the arrows to defeat the Blue Ghost. The elevator will rise, allowing you to descend to the boss.

As the elevator stops, jump out and face the walls. The abutments on the walls need to be pushed to make switches and exits appear. There's also a Gold Skulltula in one of the gaps. After hitting the switches, push the walls until you see the Boss Room in one of the gaps.

Boss

Phantom Ganon

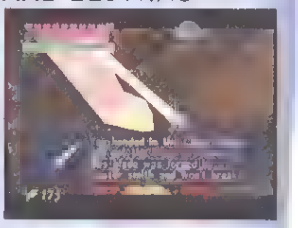
Phantom Ganon is an old fart who rides his horse from picture to picture in this room. First, shoot him with arrows as he leaps from the picture (you'll see a purple time warp appear as he prepares to leap). After a couple of shots, he'll jump down from his high horse and float around the room. As he throws energy shots at you, bat them back at him with your sword. When one connects, he'll be stunned, and you can move in to slash him. Rinse and repeat until done.



DID YOU...

...OBTAIN THE GREAT SWORD?

TRADE WINS ARE BLOWING



And we don't mean that mushy sword from the hidden Goron sword shop in Goron City. The Great Sword is crafted by the Giant Goron on top of Death Mountain. To get it, you have to go through a whole trading sequence:

THE CUCKOO LADY

As teen Link, go to the Cuckoo Lady. She'll ask you to help a cuckoo that's not feeling well. The cuckoo needs to wake Talon, who's in the house in Kakariko Village. Take the cuckoo to Talon and return to the Cuckoo Lady, who gives you a special Blue Cuckoo. Go to the Lost Woods.

THE LONELY MAN

Give the Blue Cuckoo to the man under the tree (who's in the room to the left as you first enter the woods). He asks you to help him by going to the witch in Kakariko Village and delivering a potion. He's timing you, so hurry back to the village.

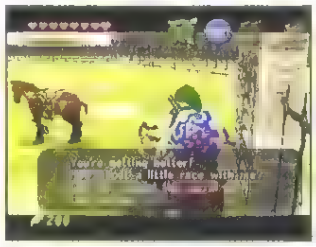
THE WITCH

The witch in Kakariko Village is located behind the potion shop. Just enter the shop, then walk to the left. She wants you to take a mushroom to the man. You're being timed again, so move it—and, oh yeah, before we forget—you can't warp to any of these locations.

THE POACHER'S SAW

When you get back to the woods, the man is gone. In his place is a little Kokiri girl who demands the forest mushroom back. Give it to her, and she gives you a Poacher's Saw.

Collect your heart piece and go back to the Temple of Time, where you'll learn the Prelude of Light. This allows you to warp to the temple at any time and to change back into young Link. Not just yet, though. You have to go see a man about a horse



Head to Lon Lon Ranch and go to the corral. Tell Ingo you want to ride, then call Epona with the Ocarina and practice riding. Jump both fences in the corral (you'll hear the audio signal when you do it correctly), then, while you're still astride Epona, go to Ingo and speak to him. Challenge him to a race, beat him twice, and Epona is yours. After winning, charge Epona into the far fence, which she'll leap over. You can ride throughout Hyrule and call Epona whenever you need her.

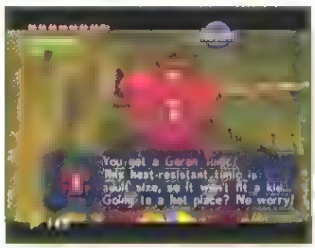
Warp to the Temple of Time and replace the sword in the stone to revert to young Link. Now head to Kakariko Village and play the Song of Storms for the musician in the windmill. The well will drain. Climb to the bottom of the well and walk into the wall next to the skeleton

As you come through, walk to the right and follow the sewer path until you see the Triforce emblem (stay in the middle of the sewer). Play Zelda's Lullaby while standing on the symbol and the water will drain.

Go back to the beginning of the sewers where you came in and fall into the gap. Take the small crawlspace and follow it to the Lens of Truth.

A wicked-looking mini-boss guards the Lens. Around him are a bunch of hands that will hold you so he can kick your ass. Keep swiping at them, using Din's Fire and bombs as you tackle the mini-boss. You'll be awarded the Lens of Truth

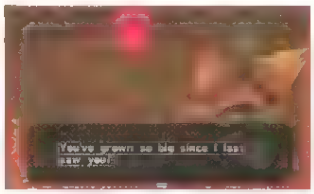
Use the Lens of Truth inside the well to see false walls and trap doors. Collect goodies in the well, then warp to the Temple of Time and revert to teen Link. Head back to Goron City.



In Goron City, there's a lone boulder rolling around the ledges. Bomb it and he'll talk to you (it's really a young Goron). He'll give you the Fire Tunic and open up the Bomb Shop and Darunia's Lair.

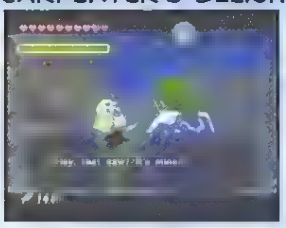
Temple of Fire

Go into Darunia's Lair and pull the statue to reveal the entrance to the Temple of Fire. Cross the bridge and you'll immediately (and automatically) be taught the Bolero of Fire. Now you can warp to the Temple of Fire at any time.



Go through the door to the left of the three fire totems and meet Darunia a second time. Check to the left for the first imprisoned Goron, then exit the room and go through the door to the right of the totems.

CARPENTER'S DELIGHT

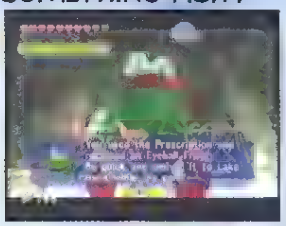


Give the saw to the Boss Carpenter in Gerudo Valley, and he'll give you a broken sword. Take it to the top of Death Mountain.

RED-EYE FLIGHT

The Giant Goron on top of Death Mountain can't work because his eyes are irritated. He asks you to go see King Zora and get some eyedrops. But you're being timed, so the minute you get down from the mountain, head to Zora's Domain.

SOMETHING FISHY



Zora can't give you eyedrops because the old wizard in Lake Hylia makes them. Instead, Zora gives you a frog eyeball to take to the wizard so that he can make the eyedrops. Again, a timer starts, so call Epona and ride to Lake Hylia.

FINALLY

Give the eyedrops to the Giant Goron. He'll give you a claim check for the sword. Wait a couple of days (go adventuring, save and turn the game off, or keep playing the Sun Song), and he gives you the Great Sword.

In the next room, go to the left and play the Song of Time at the stone block. Climb on the block, then go through the door that opens.

Meet the shield-eating monster! Defeat it, then re-equip your tunic and shield. Grab the Gold Skulltula, then go back into the lava room.

In the lava room, play the Song of Time again. The block will return to its original position. Go through the door behind where the block was, release the Goron, and grab the key in the chest. Go to the opposite wall, bomb it, and release the other Goron. Now use the door opposite the way you came in.

In the next room, climb the fence until you reach the large block. Push the block off the ledge until it sits on the lava spout. Jump on the block and ride up a level.

Go through the door. You'll be in a room with a lot of Torch Slugs and a trapped Goron. You'll get to the Goron later. First, climb the ledge until you come to the gate on fire. Drop down a ledge, then drop a bomb on the Crystal switch and wait by the gate. When the bomb explodes, the switch will activate and the fire will be extinguished for a short time. Now climb the gate to the next room. Go through the door.

You are now in giant maze with boulders rolling around. There are four doors.

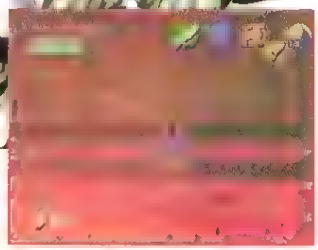
Door #1 leads to a Goron who explains how to extinguish fires.

Door #2 leads you to a Goron who tells you about exploding doors.

Door #3 leads to a narrow hallway with an Eye switch.

Door #4 leads back the way you came in.

Go through all the doors except Door #3. After releasing the Gorons, enter Door #3 and hit the Eye switch with an arrow. Go into the room and get the Dungeon Map, then leave.



Follow the narrow walkway to the right, and you'll find yourself in a room with grates. Run to the other side of room (on your right) and go through the door.

Now you're on top of the maze room, walking along the top of the maze. Bomb the crevice in front of you, climb down, rescue the Goron, then go back to the maze.

To prevent yourself from starting all over again if you fall in the maze room, cast Farore's Wind so you have a warp spot to go to just in case.

On top of the maze, free a Goron and grab the key from the chest, then go to the door where your warp is waiting. Enter through the door and head back up into the grate room. Now that you have a key, go through the locked door in the grate room.

Follow the hall and you'll end up in the room with the pillar that Darunia was standing near at the beginning of the temple. Go to the left of the room and enter the locked door. You can't save the Goron in the next hall just yet; so continue to the end of the hall and go through the door.

Head to the left of the room (watch for fire barriers) and find the switch. Rush to the face on the wall, then bomb the door. Another door appears behind it. Exit through it.

Now you'll face the fire dancer, a nasty fellow who takes some patience to defeat. Use the grapple hook to hit the bomb he carries, then target the bomb as you slash at it. After you defeat him, stand on the block to go through the ceiling, then use the door.

You're in another room with a timed Crystal switch. Bomb the switch from above as you stand near the fire, then climb the gate when it's extinguished.

Now you're on top of the temple. Don't push that block in front of you just yet! Instead, hit the floor switch and grab the treasure in the chest. The Megaton Hammer! Now let's get some smashin' done!

Hammer the block at the entrance, then drop in the hole. Hammer the totem guarding the door and leave.

In the next room, kill the bats, then hammer the stone so the stairs fall Grab a crate and place it on the block switch at the bottom. Go through the door and hammer the block on the floor. Ride it down to the next level

There's a rusty switch next to you. Pound on the block behind you before you hit the rusty switch. Now nail the switch and go through door.

Go to the block and play the Song of Time. The block moves, revealing another rusty switch. Hit it to release the Goron. Talk to him and return to the previous room.

Drop off the ledge's left side and go to the room in back. Get the Compass, then come back and drop into this hole

You're on the first floor. Go through the door and down the steps in front of the fire totems. Break the totem guarding the room.

In the next room, kill all the creatures to open the door, then go through the door

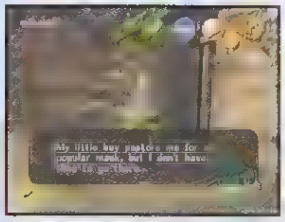
DID YOU...

...GET ALL THE MASKS?

YOU MASKED FOR IT

Scattered throughout Hyrule are giant stones that seem worthless at first. Actually, they are Stones of Truth, markers that give you a variety of game hints. But to interpret the stones, you need the Mask of Truth. Here's how you get it.

THE KEATON MASK



Give the Keaton Mask to the guard at Death Mountain gate in Kakariko Village. Come back, pay the owner, and pick up the next mask.

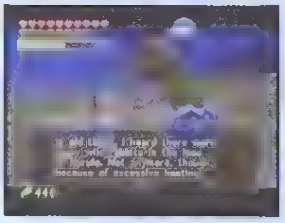
THE SKULL MASK

Go to the Lost Woods and learn Saria's song, then look for the mischievous little spirit playing the Ocarina on the tree stump (in the first room to the left after entering the woods). He'll shortchange you on the Skull Mask, but sell it to him anyway. Back to the shop!

THE SPOOKY MASK

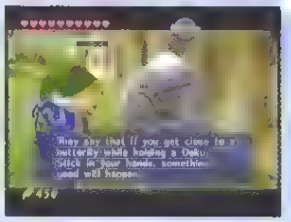
A sad wooden mask, the Spooky Mask is perfect for someone who wants to scare adults. Take it to the child in the graveyard in Kakariko Village. He pays a lot for the mask. Go back to the shop.

THE RABBIT MASK



The Rabbit Mask looks ridiculous. Some villagers say that it should amuse a man chasing rabbits in the field. Go out into Hyrule Field and look for the Running Man. When you spot him, chase him until he sits on the ground. Present the mask to him, and he'll pay you handsomely. Back to the shop.

THE MASK OF TRUTH



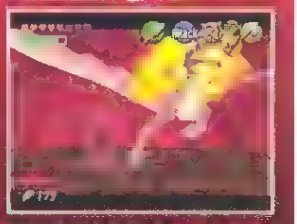
Wear the Mask of Truth whenever you approach a Stone of Truth, and you'll glean little bits of information, some that you already know and some that will astonish you. If you want a greater challenge, ignore this side venture completely.

It's the shield-eater again! Use the hammer, then grab the Gold Skulltula. Exit out the door on the right.

Another fire dancer! Repeat the strategy from before, then grab the bombs. Go through the door and hit the rusty switch to release the Goron. Snag the Boss Key from the chest. Exit the room, and you'll find yourself in the foyer of the temple. Go to the room on the left of the fire totems to find the pit room where you first saw Darunia. Cross the pit and enter the Boss Room.

Boss

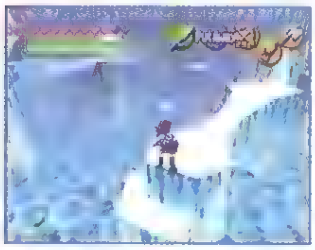
Volvagia



Volvagia is one mean lizard. When you see his head firing up from a hole, hammer it, then slash him when he's stunned. As he flies around showering rocks, stand on the edge of the lava pit and hang from the sides. If he doesn't chuck rocks, he's susceptible to arrows. Rinse and repeat until he's done.

You now receive the Medallion of Fire! Let's get to Zora's Domain and find the Temple of Water.

Temple of Water



Go to where Jabu-Jabu used to reside and jump on the ice floes. Head to the left and enter the ice cavern. Follow the cavern until you reach the area with the high ledges. Keep your bow and arrow ready for the pesky ice bats. Go up the ledge, fill an empty bottle with Blue Fire from the fountain, and use it on the chest in this room in order to get the Dungeon Map. Refill your bottle.

Now go back to King Zora and use the Blue Fire on him. He rewards you with the Water Tunic, which lets you breathe underwater. Go back to the ice cavern and fill all your bottles with Blue Fire. Use the Blue Fire on anything that glows red or looks like an opening. Now make your way into this room, which is down the passage on the left side as you enter the room with the giant blade in it.

This room has a platform and silver coins. Push the ice block in front of you so that it's positioned beneath the coins. Open the door, fight the wolf, grab the iron boots from the chest, and find Sheikah again. Make sure you're wearing the Water Tunic.

DID YOU...

...PLANT ALL THE SEEDS?

MAGIC BEANS

During the game you'll encounter the seed merchant who sells young Link some Magic Beans. Look for seed holes to plant the beans, then return as teen Link. Ride the plants to discover different items, usually valuable heart pieces! The seed holes are also useful for bugs you've trapped in an empty bottle. Release them into a hole; they'll turn into Gold Skulltulas.

THE TEMPLE OF FIRE

At the warp pad in the Temple of Fire is another seed hole. You have to learn the Bolero of Fire, then warp here as young Link and plant the seed. Hurry! You can't last for long in the Fire Temple as young Link. When you return as teen Link, change into the Fire Tunic and ride to a forgotten heart piece!

ZORA'S RIVER

Next to the seed seller is the first seed hole, which takes you near a heart piece and a Fairy Fountain in the river.

THE TEMPLE OF SPIRIT

You'll find another seed pod at the steps of the Temple. This takes you to a heart piece and to a hidden hole in the ground plus other areas of interest (get your bombs ready)!

TWO IN THE LOST WOODS

There are two seed holes in the Lost Woods. The first is near the bridge where Saria was first seen. The second is near the mischievous musical brothers. One takes you to a heart piece. The other leads to mystery and adventure.

KOKIRI FOREST

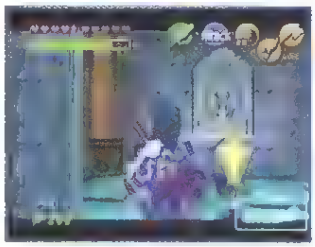
When this pod matures, it will take you to a hidden Rupee stash and float you past some of the main buildings. If you didn't already grab the heart piece here, do it now.

To get into the Temple of Water, play the Serenade of Water, then sink to the entrance and use the Hookshot on the blue stone. Go inside and change your boots so that you can float up. Now go back to your iron boots and jump in.

Enter the doorway with two torches to find Princess Ruto. She'll tell you there are three places to change the water level. Change out of your iron boots to follow her and float to the top where you see the Triforce emblem. Play Zelda's Lullaby and the water level will sink. Go to the room to the left of the symbol and battle the spikes to get the Dungeon Map.

Go back into the hole you swam up to reach the Triforce. Either shoot arrows through the lit torch on the middle to light the two side torches, or use Din's Fire to open the door. Go inside and kill the clams (shoot them when their mouths are open), then get the key and leave the room.

After exiting the hall with Ruto, go to the next hall on the left. Use bombs on the floor at the end of the room to create a hole. Now change into the iron boots. Walk down the hall and change boots again to float up.

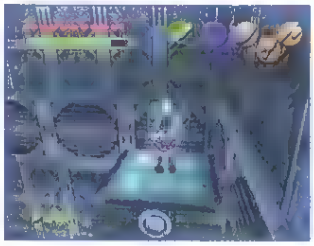


Press the switch in this room to raise the water. Use the Hookshot to grapple to the statue, then kill the two crabs. Target the Crystal switch behind the gate and use the power slash to open it. Grab the Skulltula in this room. Return to the main room.

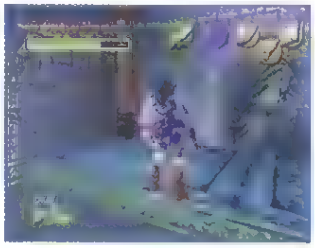
Head to the left of the hallway you were just in and push the stone until you hear a chime. Go through the hole in the floor, then change your boots and sink to the bottom. Walk to the end of the hall and change your boots again.

Slash the Crystal switch, which creates a fountain. Walk across the fountain water to exit the room.

In the next room is a whirlpool and a submerged dragon. Sink to the bottom, and use the Hookshot to hit the dragon's tooth. Now grapple up to the hall and get under the gate before it closes. Kill the two clams, change your boots to float up, then enter the room to get another key. Hit the switch to open the gate again.



Go to the middle of the main room and unlock the bottom door. Inside the tower, grapple to the next level and play Zelda's Lullaby at the Triforce emblem. The water will rise another level. Put on your iron boots and sink to the bottom of the tower. Go into the space created by the rising block, follow the hall, and you'll come to a room with a switch. Hit the switch, then kill the enemies and proceed through the grate on the right side of the room to get a key.



Return to the room where you first met Ruto. Take off the boots and float up the middle of the room. Bomb the wall and get another key. Go back to the top of the tower and walk along the ledge.

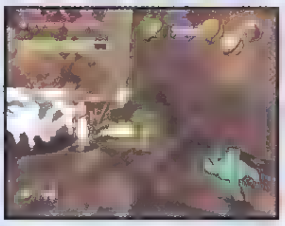
THE OLD MAN OF LAKE HYLIA

Near the old wizard's house is another seed pod. When it grows, ride it to the roof of his house, which hides another heart piece.

THE DODONGO CAVERN

Just outside the entrance to Dodongo's Cavern is another seed hole. This one leads to a heart piece and another Fairy Fountain.

GERUDO VALLEY



Jump to the right of the bridge near the guard who won't let you in. You should land on a ledge. Near the cow and the other Gerudon is another seed hole. It will take you behind the waterfall for another heart piece.

THE KAKARIKO GRAVEYARD

Right next to the first grave on the upper tier is a seed hole. It will take you only a short distance, but you'll find a heart piece in the box near where you land.

Grapple to the next locked room and open the door. In this room, stand on the fountain and shoot the Crystal switch to go up a level. Go through the next door and play Zelda's Lullaby at the Triforce emblem.

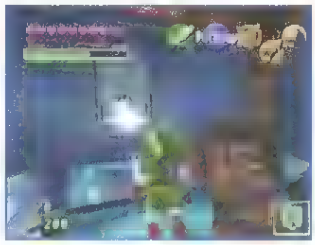
Sink to the room with a grapple point and two clay pots at the entrance. Enter the room with grappling hooks and giant dragon's teeth on the bottom. Grapple behind the teeth on the floor. Now grapple to the ceiling. Stand near the chest and shoot the Crystal switch. Grab the Compass from the chest and go back to the tower and enter the locked room.

In the next room, grapple from one platform to the next until you reach the other side.

You should be in a room with grappling hooks and three dragon totems. Grapple the Crystal switch in the middle to raise the water levels. Now grapple the totem across from you. Grapple the Crystal switch again to lower the water. Now get across the chasm via the hook on the wall.

Climb over the totem head and grapple the Crystal switch again. Make your way to the door on the left.

Kill the shield-eating worm, then go through the door. Walk across the water and face a mirror image of yourself. Use Din's Fire, then Deku nuts to stun the water Link. Slash with your sword. After water Link's defeated, open the door to receive the Longshot.



While in the Longshot room, go behind the chest and play the Song of Time to open the floor. Jump in, put on your iron boots and wind your way down the river, being careful to avoid the vortexes. At the end of the river, jump on the ledge to the left and take off the iron boots. Hit the Eye switch and jump to the ledge to get the key. Follow the hall and you'll end up in the whirlpool room with the dragon's head. Go to the first Triforce emblem and lower the water.

Enter the tower and grapple to the second story. Go through the door and look for the gated hall with the Eye switch below it. Hit the switch with an arrow, then grapple across. Follow the hall and pull out the stone block. Go to the other end of the hall and grapple up. Return to the main tower, then jump down to the second story and hit the Eye switch again.

Now go back to the block and push it until it's flush against the wall. Enter the room and grab the key.

Now go down to the first floor and inside the second hallway to the right of the torches. Put on your boots, sink, then walk to the end of the hall. Remove the iron boots.

Find the room with the teeth guarding the door. Grapple to unlock the door and, in the next room, swim to the opposite door. Enter the room.

Kill the stingers in here first, then bomb both corners of the room that have ledges. Go through the hall on the right side of the room and pull the stone. Now go to the opposite end of the hall and push the stone. Leave the hallway and go back to the rock to push it onto the underwater switch. When the water rises, leave the room through the new door.

In the next room, kill the crabs (with arrows if you have 'em), then hit the switch and walk across the fountains to the opposite door.

Watch for boulders, then head to the right. Change into the iron boots, kill the clam, change boots again, and float to the top to open the door. Inside is the Boss Key. Take it and return to the tower in the main room.

With the water at the top, make your way to the stone dragon totem in front of the door. Grapple the totem, grab the two fairies in the stone pots and enter Morpha's nightmare.

Boss

Morpha

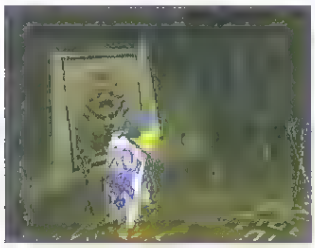
Morpha is complex, yet patterned. Target the nucleus as it floats through the water, and use the Hookshot to stun it. Next, slash at it with the sword. When Morpha's tentacles reach for you, move quickly—her watery grasp can drain several hearts at a time. Rinse and repeat until she's done.

You did it! You have the first three Medallions and are almost ready for your showdown with Ganondorf!

Chapter 3: The Fall of the House of Ganon

Temple Of Shadow

First, head to Kakariko Village. A long sequence follows in which the mysterious Sheikah watches the village burn! She also teaches you the Nocturne of Shadow to get you to the temple.



Go to the graveyard and play the Nocturne of Shadow. When you warp to the temple, walk down the passage and stand in the center of the unlit torches. Use Din's Fire to light the torches and go through the door.

Grapple across the pit and then use the Lens of Truth to see through the walls. Go through the door and find a statue of a giant crow. Using the Lens of Truth, look at the poles surrounding the crow only one skull actually stays visible. Point the statue's beak toward that skull. Go through the door (keep the Lens on) and follow the hall toward the right. You should eventually come upon the room with the map chest.

Exit the map room and head to the right. You find a room with spindly hands and the mini-boss from the Lens of Truth room. Use the Lens of Truth to see where to place bombs that will kill the mini-boss. Your reward is the Hover Boots

Return to the room with the crow statue. Equip the Hover Boots, then walk across the chasm in front of you. Now walk down the passage and bomb the laser statue. Go through the stone wall on the left.

You're now in a room with two Grim Reapers and a large floor blade. Collect the silver coins and a door opens. Grab the key in this room, then leave through the door you entered.

Back in the foyer with the laser statue, enter through the stone door across from you and battle the two mummies. The Compass is your reward. Return to the laser statue and bomb the middle stone door. Unlock the door with your key

Follow the hallway and carefully pass the guillotines. Watch for spiders falling from above and be especially wary of hands that fall from the ceiling—if they catch you, they'll transport you back to the beginning of the level. Sound familiar?

In the room full of guillotines, run the gauntlet, then fight the skeleton at the back wall. Defeat it and use the Lens of Truth to jump across the hidden platforms on the left side of the room

Go through the door and walk along the left wall. Kill the shield-eating worm and the three bats (this opens the door, allowing you to collect a Gold Skulltula). Use the Lens of Truth to see the hidden chest in this room.

Return to the room with the guillotines and go to the ledge where you fought the skeleton. Jump to the rising platform, then use the Hover Boots to get off it as it moves. Avoid the laser statue along with the floor razors and go through the door.

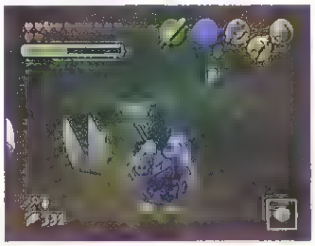
NARYU'S LOVE

We explained how to get to all the Great Fairy Fountains, rewarding you with Din's Fire, the spin attack, and Farore's Wind. One of the last Great Fairy Fountains is near the Temple of Spirit in the desert. Walk away from the warp pad and go up the small slope behind you. Head to the left of the temple until you see two palm trees and a crack in the wall. Bomb the crack and receive Naryu's Love. This power lets you shield yourself from harm for a short while during battles.

Collect the silver coins on this platform to open the door. Can't find the last coin? Bomb the laser statue and the coin appears underneath it. Go through the door

In the next room, use the Lens of Truth to reveal the block in the wall Pull the block out of the wall and push it under the ceiling spikes for safe passage to the Gold Skulltula. Now pull the block all the way to the end of the hall and climb on top of it.

Use the Hover Boots to fly from ledge to ledge until you reach the switch. A chest is revealed. Grab the key from the chest and exit the room. Return to the main room (with the laser statue and the guillotines) and use the Lens of Truth to see the moving platforms. Walk across the platforms to the locked door. Open it.



Use the Lens of Truth in the next room and kill the two ReDead creatures to get the chest. Be wary of the spikes! Collect the silver coins to open the door, use the Lens of Truth again, and check the ceiling for hidden grapple points. Go through the door.

Enter the next room, kill the two bats, then grab the Gold Skulltula located behind the giant skull. Climb the stairs and grab the Bomb Flowers behind the skull. Toss the bombs into the skull, then take the key when it's destroyed. Kill the remaining bats to open the doors.

Return to the room with the hidden grapple points and grapple to the locked door. Open it and proceed to the next room.

Use the iron boots to walk safely past the fans. When you turn the corner, grapple across the gap, then walk down the middle of the ledge. Go through the door.

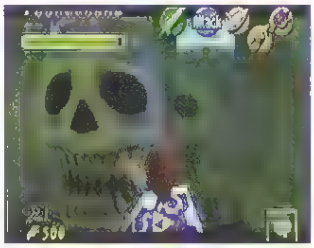
When you enter this room, unequip the iron boots and play the Sun Song to freeze the ReDead creatures. Kill them, then use the Lens of Truth to spot the hidden chest. Play the Sun Song again to obtain a fairy, which refills your magic meter.

Return to the hall, equip the iron boots again, and use the Lens of Truth. Turn right at the first fan to find a secret passage. Now equip the Hover Boots and let the fan push you to the passage.

Remove the Hover Boots and kill the mummies. Use a bomb on the crevice just to the right of the door. Arm the Lens of Truth to see the hidden chest, and get the key inside it.

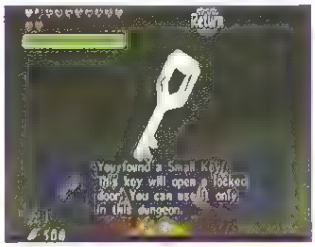
Unlock the door, then head left and pull the block out to the path. Now run to the other side and pull the block all the way down to the wall. Climb on top of the block and then onto the ladder. Jump to the boat, stand on the bow, and grapple the Gold Skulltula to the left. Play Zelda's Lullaby to get the boat moving. At some point, skeleton warriors appear. Kill them and jump to the left when Navi gives her warning.

Turn right and open the door. At the end of hall, use the Lens of Truth to see the hidden walls, and—more importantly—the ceiling hands. Also in this room are a chest with a key inside and four doors.



One door leads to a room with three skull statues. Get the Gold Skulltula behind the statues, then go to the top of the room and throw bombs into the skull heads. When the skulls are destroyed, make your way back to the main room.

Another door leads to a room with spikes closing in on you from both sides. Use Din's Fire to burn both walls and get the Boss Key.



A third door leads to a room with another small chest. Kill the enemies in this room to get to the chest.

The fourth door is the one you initially used to enter this room. When you've explored the other rooms, exit the main room and return to the area where you jumped off the ship.

Shoot fire arrows into the Bomb Flowers to make the stone statue fall across the gap. When it falls, cross the gap and enter the locked room. Use the Lens of Truth to see the platforms in the next room, then make your way across to the boss door. Unlock the door and jump into the pit to meet...Bongo Bongo! Use the Lens of Truth to see this boss

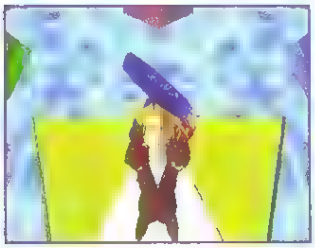
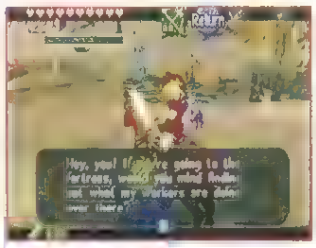
Bongo Bongo

To kill Bongo Bongo, shoot arrows at the hands. Each time you hit a hand, it turns blue and is stunned. Both hands must be blue to reveal the real boss. When the two hands turn to fists and come toward you, activate the Lens of Truth to glimpse the real boss, but turn it off right away. Why? You can't shoot arrows while the Lens of Truth is activated. When the fists approach, shoot an arrow into the space in between the hands to stun the boss, then slash it. Rinse and repeat until done.



You now have the Shadow Medallion and Impa's power! Now head to Gerudo Valley to get Ganondorf!

Temple Of Spirit



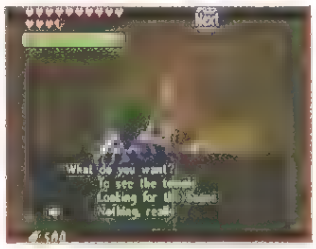
Stop at the first tent past the Gerudo Bridge. The boss carpenter from Kakariko Village is looking for his men, who have been captured by the Gerudons. Ride your horse into Gerudo Fortress and get captured.

Grapple up to the wooden window of your cell and carefully shoot an arrow at the first Gerudon guard below you. Drop to the room on your left, run through the door, and find the first of four carpenters. To defeat their captors, target a guard, then either throw a Deku nut at them or stun them with the Longshot. After a guard is stunned, attack with a power slash.

Make your way through the fortress and recover the rest of the men. After saving the last one, the Gerudon guard congratulates you on your prowess and rewards you with a Gerudon Membership card. Now you can enter the Gerudo Training Ground or enter the Archery Horseback competition. The latter rewards you with a heart piece; and the treasure inside the Gerudo Training Ground is Ice Arrows. Neither item is essential to finish the game, so if you're pressed for time you can blow them off. Head out of Gerudo Valley (opposite of the way you came in) and talk to the guard at the tower. Equip the Lens of Truth along with the Hover Boots and make your way across the desert.

Work your way through the red flags and eventually you arrive at a bunker. Read the sign, then use the Lens of Truth to follow the ghost guide to the Temple of Spirit.

Enter the temple, then exit immediately. An automatic sequence will follow in which the mysterious sheik teaches you the Requiem of Spirit. Now you can warp back and forth to the Temple of Spirit.



Warp back to the Temple of Time to turn into young Link, then warp back to the Temple of Spirit. As young Link, enter the temple, go to the left of the Armos, and talk to the Gerudon thief on the left (it's Nabooru, the legendary Gerudon). Speak to her and answer, "Nothing, really." She gives you a mission.

Enter the small crawlspace, kill the Armos and the bats, then go through the first door on your left. You encounter a skeleton guard and a flying Bat Skull! Kill them, then use the Boomerang to hit the Crystal switch and lower a bridge across the chasm

Enter the door, and you'll see a pathway with clay pots and a mummy. Break the pots with the Boomerang. Walk toward the floor razor and jump to the left. The mummy mirrors your actions —but in the opposite direction. Use the slingshot to hit the switch across from you and a fire will ignite in front of the door. Lure the mummy into it to open the door.

In the next room, kill all the bats and the ceiling monster. Collect all the silver coins to lower another bridge. Go through the door, light the two torches, and grab the key from the chest that falls. Go back into the foyer where the laser statue is

Go through the other crawlspace and use the key to enter the locked room. In the next room, kill the spiders on the stone wall, then scale the wall. At the top is a Gold Skulltula. Kill all the spiders in the room along with the Lizalfos. Use the slingshot on the switch to get the chest, then use a Bombchu on the wall. When the wall breaks and the sunlight pours through, the switch on the floor opens the door.

Go through the door and push the statue on the left off the ledge. The statue lands on the switch, which in turn opens a door at the top of the staircase.

Use Bombchus to take out the laser statues, then collect the silver coins. After collecting the last coin, the torch in the middle of the room ignites. Use a Deku stick to light the other torches and receive a chest with a key.

Move the blocks so that the block with the Sun switch is under the ray of light from the window. Go through the door that opens and look behind you. Go through that door and grab the Gold Skulltula.

Unlock the door at the top of the staircase. Behind the door is a formidable metal monster called Iron Knuckle. Hit him to awaken him, then make him follow you around the room. The easiest way to kill him is to wait until he swings, then attack him from behind.

Go through the door, and you'll meet the owl and get the Silver Gauntlet. After a long automatic sequence, you warp back to the Temple of Time to change into the teen Link. Now warp to the Temple of Spirit and re-enter it.

Go to the right and push the large gray block, then bomb the laser statue when the other blocks fall into place. Look at the ceiling and hit the Crystal switch. Go through the door on the left of the craw space.

Kill the two wolves, stand on the Triforce symbol, and play Zelda's Lullaby to drop a chest. Grapple to the chest and get the Compass. Exit the room and enter the room on the left.

Nab the Gold Skulltula, then climb the walls to get the silver coins. For the last coin suspended in the air, walk off the ledge with the Hover Boots.

Go through door, kill the shield-eater, then open the chest to get the key. Go back to the foyer where the laser statue is. Unlock the door. In the next room, kill another shield-eater and climb the wall. Enter the next room and use the Lens of Truth to see the ceiling monster. Kill it. Align the mirror so it reflects on the Sun switch. Go through the door that opens.

Go left into the main room with the statue of the snake woman. Use Din's Fire to light the torches at the base of the statue, then grab the Dungeon Map from the chest that appears.

Jump into the statue's left hand and play Zelda's Lullaby so a chest appears in her right hand. Get the key from the chest and use it to unlock the door at the top of the staircase behind you.

Inside are three mummies and a laser statue. Use Fire Arrows on the mummies and a Bombchu on the statue. Go through the door that opens.

Rile all four statues in this room by swiping your sword at them. As they hop around, one eventually rests on the floor switch. Go through the door that opens and use the Lens of Truth in the hall to see two hidden chests. Proceed up the hall and face another Iron Knuckle. After defeating it, go through the passage and open the chest to receive the Mirror Shield.

Take the shield and return to the room with the four statues. Use the shield to reflect sunlight on the Sun switch. Get the key from the chest. Return to the room where you met the mummies and unlock the door.

In next room, bomb the laser statues, then climb the revolving walls. The walls are timed, so watch closely before you make your ascent.

At the top, play Zelda's Lullaby to open the gate. Go through the door and kill all the Torch Slugs. Hammer the door to the left of the chest, then shoot an arrow into the Eye switch to create a secondary platform in the room. Grapple to the platform, press the switch, and get the Boss Key

Exit the room and go up the stairway on the right. Make a mental note of the giant mirror on the right. Hit the Crystal switch behind the gate to open the door

Go through the door and kill the Lizalfos and all the flying Bat Skulls. Use the Mirror Shield to reflect sunlight onto the Sun switch above the door. Get the bombs from the chest that appears and enter the anteroom. Bomb the wall to the left of the mirror, then move the mirror to reflect onto the mirror in the newly opened room. Now reflect the light from the second mirror onto the giant mirror you noticed earlier.

Return to the giant mirror and use the shield to reflect sunlight onto the Sun switch. The floor lowers until you're face to face with the giant snake woman statue. Use the shield to burn away the statue's face and grapple to the entrance. The Boss Key opens the door.

Meet the Twin Rovas, a pair of witch-like sisters, and a pumped-up Iron Knuckle. Throw bombs at Knuckle's head to reveal Nabooru, the Gerudo thief, who's brainwashed by the sisters. Watch the long automatic sequence, then go through the door and climb the middle platform to meet the Twin Rova Boss.

Boss

Twin Rova Boss

Use the shield to store either the fire or the ice magic the sisters throw at you. After the third attack of the same element—for instance, three fireballs in a row—your shield reflects the magic back at your attackers. Try to aim fire at the ice sister and ice at the fire sister to stun them. While they're stunned, you can whup on them. Rinse and repeat until defeated. Collect the heart piece, then warp your butt to the Temple of Time.

Go to Ganon's Castle (formerly Hyrule Castle) and wade through a long automatic sequence. After that—it's go time! You have to release each of the five sages to break the spell around the castle, then defeat Ganon himself!

Saria

The Temple Of Forest Sage

Enter the castle and kill the two laser statues guarding the door. Go to the right, enter the first door (with a Green Medallion above the doorway), and kill the wolf inside the room. Grab the contents of the chest, then use Fire Arrows to light the torch over the door. Now use Deku sticks or Din's Fire to ignite the remaining torches. Once all the torches are lit, the gate will open. Go through it.

Use the Hover Boots to move from one block to the next. Get on the platform to the left of the room that has a coin hanging over it. See the switch on the platform next to you? Go to that platform, hit the switch and a grappling point appears on the platform you were just standing on. Grapple to that platform and get the coin. Collect the rest of the coins to open the door.

Go through the door and use a Light Arrow to release Saria; she'll send you back to the main room.

Nabooru

The Temple Of Spirit Sage

Go through door on the right of Saria's Barrier (an Orange Medallion is above the doorway).

In the next room, collect all the silver coins to open the gated door. To get the coin hanging in the middle of the room, stand under it and look up. See that grapple point? Use it to grab the last coin.

Go through the door and kill all the Torch Slugs in the room. Hit the switch through the gate and grab the contents of the chest that appears.

Stand against the wall and face a second switch located against the far wall, behind the first switch. Use a Bombchu to activate the switch.

Go down the hall and through the door, then stand in the middle of the room. Use Fire Arrows on the ice block above you. When the sun shines through, use the Mirror Shield on the second Sun switch to the left of the gated door. When the door opens, go through it.

In the next room, use a Light Arrow to release Nabooru. She sends you back to the main room.

Princess Ruto

The Temple Of Water Sage

Descend the staircase to the right. A Blue Medallion guards the door.

Kill the Ice Wizards to open the gate. Break the ice around the Blue Fire Fountain, fill a bottle with Blue Fire, and melt the block in front of the door. Refill your bottle—you're going to need it in the next room

Push the stone block so it slides and stops before the stone obstacle, then push it into the hole. Push the other block against the stone obstacle and then up to the door. Climb up and use the Blue Fire to melt the wall. Push the rusty switch to open the gated door. Go through the door.

Enter the room and use a Light Arrow to release Princess Ruto. She sends you back to the main room.

Impa

The Temple Of Shadow Sage

Go to the right and enter the door with a Purple Medallion above the doorway. Enter the room.

Grapple to the chest on the left and use a Fire Arrow to light the torch on the opposite side of the room. A series of blocks appears—run across them and jump to the main platform in the middle of the room. Kill the shield-eating monster and light the torch (with Fire Arrows) next to the gated door. Another series of platforms appears. Follow them to the floor switch, press it, and grapple to the chest that appears. You now receive the Golden Gauntlet, which allows you to pick up bigger blocks.

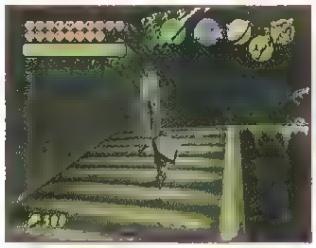
Use the Lens of Truth to see the ice walkways that will you lead to the imprisoned Impa.

Go through the door and use a Light Arrow to release Impa. She sends you back to the main room.

Leave the castle. After crossing the bridge, go to the left and destroy the rocks. Move the giant stone block to reach the Great Fairy Fountains (where you learned the spin attack). The Great Fairy increases your defensive power by doubling your hearts. Return to the castle.

Darunia

The Temple Of Fire Sage



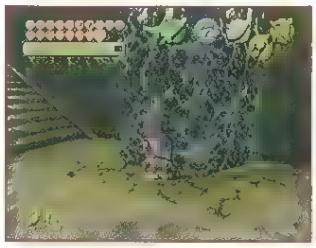
Go to the right and enter the door with a Red Medallion above it.

You must collect all the silver coins to open the door. Use the Hover Boots to get the coins, then grab the big gray block on the right (this starts a sequence which allows you to get the last coin). Exit the room to release Darunia.

Go through the door and use a Light Arrow to release Darunia. He sends you back to the main room.

Rauru

The Temple Of Light Sage



Walk to the right and up to the door with a Yellow Medallion above the doorway. Move the giant stone block away from the entrance, then enter the room.

Use the Lens of Truth to see (and ultimately kill) the Skulltula and bats. Grab the key from the chest that falls and go through the door.

In the next room, play Zelda's Lullaby to make a chest appear. Grab the key from the chest and enter the next room. Collect all the coins, then grapple to the center of the ceiling to get the last coin. Go through the door that opens. The next room seems empty, but don't be fooled! Use the Lens of Truth to see the ceiling monster. Kill it before it sends you back to the beginning of the level. Go through the secret opening in this room

Go through the door and use the Lens of Truth to see the ceiling monster and the passage to Rauru, then use a Light Arrow to release the Sage of Light. He sends you back to the main room

Cross the bridge and enter the foyer of the tower. Kill the Fire Bats and ascend the staircase.

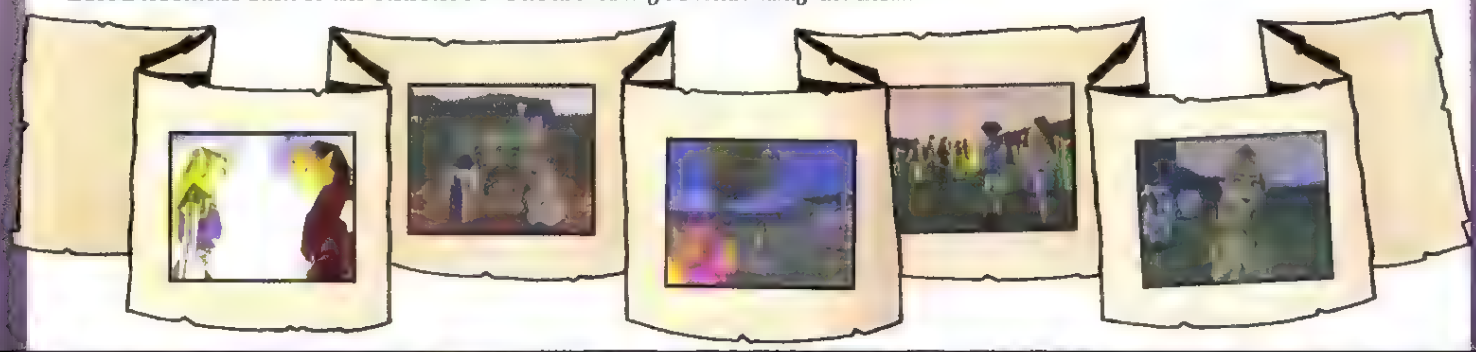
Battle the two Lizalfos to open the gated door. Go through the door, take the staircase to the top, and battle the two skeleton warriors to get the Boss Key. Up the next staircase and through the door are two Iron Knuckles. Battle them, then sit back and watch the long sequence involving Zelda and Ganondorf.

Final Boss

Ganondorf is one mean dude, and he means to have all the parts of the Triforce for himself! Make sure you have arrows and that your magic meter is full. Use your sword to bat back any projectiles Ganondorf throws at you. After a few volleys, one of the projectiles will connect with his ugly head; when this happens he'll be stunned—but only for a very short time. While he's stunned, immediately shoot a Light Arrow at him, and he'll fall to the middle platform. Now jump over to him and whack him with your sword. When he sends a multihead projectile at you, use your spin attack to deflect the projectiles right back at him. Rinse and repeat, and the big guy is almost toast.

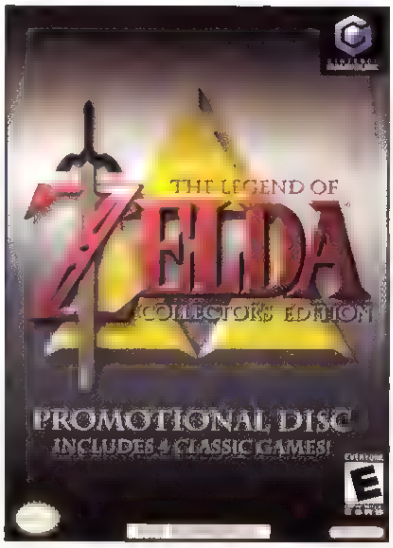
Almost! After a lengthy and sappy sequence with Zelda, Ganondorf sheds all his earthly trappings and appears as Ganon. Holding a sword in each hand, he looks formidable—but he has a weakness. Target his tail and shoot Light Arrows at it until you run out. When you're out of arrows, slash the tail with the Great Sword (you'd better have it or you'll have to rely on the Megaton Hammer). When Ganon goes down, Zelda gives you a signal, and you get the Master Sword back! Target Ganon's head and deliver the final blow.

You've done it! You've restored peace to Hyrule! But at what price? Zelda returns Link to his childhood—but more mysteries may await....



The Legend of Zelda

The one that started it all—The Legend of Zelda! In this ProStrategy Guide, we give you the maps you need to rescue Princess Zelda from the clutches of Ganon!



How To Use This Guide

The Legend of Zelda is broken into two Quests. To find any location on either of the Overworld Maps (First and Second Quests), use the letters on the top in conjunction with the numbers on the side. In order to unlock the entrance to some dungeons (or reveal certain shops, items, and more), perform the action as indicated on the various sidebars.

Unsung Villains

[illegible] a human body disguise, don't have this giant mushroom head.

Game heroes get all the credit these days. It's always "Mario this" or "Solid Snake that," just because some characters are under direct player control or actually have lines to speak.

But what about the characters who don't get the glory? What about the ones who get up every day and hump it to work just to move in predictable patterns, and ignore skill and common sense just to help provide a constant stream of trivial danger for you, the player? What about those working joes who die repeatedly, only to blink a few times and reappear later in the level just to die once more?

Because March is Forgotten Supporting Character Month, we've decided to give some of these unsung villains the light of day to help them justify their obscure and sad existences. If these sidebars help one sidewalking mushroom get through its day without bursting into tears at the futility of its life, then we think it's worthwhile.

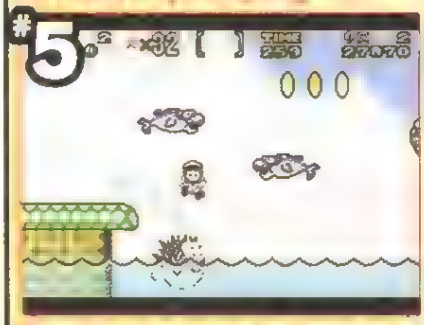
Special Extras: Erratically Leaping Fish



Every 2D game in the history of mankind has featured our number-five supporting actor. Anytime a game needed aquatic enemies without placing the hero underwater, you'd find Erratically Leaping Fish ready to answer the call. Propelling himself from the sea at fantastic velocity, Mr. Fish was able to mix up his pattern by leaping along different parabolic lines just to make it seem as though no jump would be safe.

In Super Mario Bros., he played the Cheep-Cheep, the flying bird-fish that made crossing any bridge over troubled water a harrowing experience. In Castlevania, he wore a costume with prosthetic legs and was the source of more cursing than those damn floating Medusa heads.

Hats off to you, Erratically Leaping Fish. Without you and your unpredictable patterns, we'd have missed out on countless hours of abject frustration.

Special Extras: Blind/Deaf Guard

"[illegible] Hell hangs underneath me! Quit [illegible]"

If there's anything more thankless than the job of a security guard, it's the job of a security guard in a video game. For game guards, your job consists entirely of standing there, oblivious to everything going on, and getting killed before you can reach the alarm. Hell, sometimes the hero even knows where you're looking, even if he's never even seen you with his own two eyes. Hero ESP is way unfair, man.

The Blind/Deaf Guard is the best-known game guard ever. You'll know him when you run into him because you'll be able to sneak up behind him without him knowing or run in front of him without alerting him to your presence. Most of the time, he doesn't do anything but say his stock lines, "Hrm, I think I heard something," and "I guess it was nothing," while you drag the bodies of his fellow guards up and down the halls in front of him.

So here's to you, Blind/Deaf Guard. You ignore the obvious, but we won't ignore you.

Special Extras: Ball with Mouth

Ball with Mouth in his best-known role, playing opposite one of the game world's biggest stars

Simple. Elegant. Easy to draw. There are lots of reasons Ball with Mouth gets work in video games these days. His endlessly clamping jaw and proclivity to bounce make him menacing yet delightful, which is why he's frequently typecast as a throwaway first-level enemy in 3D platformers, such as last year's Billy Hatcher and the Giant Egg. Ball with Mouth's most recognizable role was as the insatiable, shackled, mad iron sphere Chain Chomp in Mario 64, a role he has reprised in nearly every incarnation of the series (including the recent Mario Kart: Double Dash!!).

Ball's pet peeve? "Getting confused with Pac-Man. I mean, it's nice, it gets me tables at restaurants and all, but I'd like to be recognized for my own work." Despite his minimal screen time, Ball is dedicated to his craft and strictly abides to the Method Technique of Enemy A.I.: To prepare for the role of Chain Chomp, Ball with Mouth wore dentures ("uncomfortable, but I no longer had to gum my food") and tethered himself to a flagpole ("that's how I met my wife") for three months straight. "If there's one thing I'm proud of, it's the fact that I require minimal processing power; just ask any designer I've worked with, they love that. You can literally put hundreds of me on the screen at once, and nothing happens to the frame rate. I mean, I'm a ball, for crap's sake."

Special Extras: Poorly Trained Ninja

See if you can "spot" the ninja in this picture. Hint: He's in the tree.

Ninjas are the ultimate skilled assassins, moving stealthily from one kill to the next before whipping out a rocket launcher, beating up tanks, or running about on walls simply because they're too cool to be running on the floor like everyone else. Of course, not every ninja can be Shinobi, so we honor Poorly Trained Ninja, the bread and butter of any evil mastermind's shock troops.

If you go by video games, only one in every thousand ninjas actually has any real skill; the rest of them simply run straight at you, pause, swing their katanas, pause, and then reset for their next attack. There's no stealth or tactical superiority here; it's all about the Art-of-Halloween-Costume Ninja and the kind of ninjitsu your overweight cousin practiced when he first heard of the Foot Clan.

Shouts go out to you, Poorly Trained Ninja. It's not easy being easy, but you do it with aplomb.

Top Five Games Dunjin Master Is Playing Right Now

1. Deus Ex: Invisible War (Xbox, PC): Possibly one of the best games ever to face harsh criticism from its fans, Invisible War is easily one of my favorite games of all time, even if it does feature overly harsh bad guys toward the end whose power is, essentially, to make you reload over and over.
2. Champions of Norrath: Realms of EverQuest (PS2): EverQuest + Snowblind's action/RPG engine = super happy fun brilliance. This is quickly becoming my favorite genre, and my oft-relapsing addiction to EverQuest makes it a no-brainer.
3. Mario Kart: Double Dash!! (GameCube): I've never cursed at a Mario game so much, and yet I can't stop playing. I swear, if I randomly hit one more green turtle shell that just happens to be lying on the track, I might go insane and kill my platypus familiar.
4. Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time (PS2, Xbox, PC): A beautiful, gripping, challenging, and fun acrobatic puzzle game with some of the most boring and frustrating fighting sequences in history. I love the former and hate the latter, but I'm just driven by the story enough to slog through the fights.
5. Magic: The Gathering—Battlegrounds (Xbox): This game is simply too cool. It injects a little intelligence and forethought into a two-player battle scenario while rewarding quick thinking and reflexes, which the Magic: The Gathering card game left out.

Special Extras: Slime

Slime got to show his full range of talent in Enix's Dragon Warrior series.

You hardly notice him. You've probably stepped in him. Hell, you may have even accidentally eaten him. But no one supporting game character has had more screen time than the multifaceted Slime. His versatility is legendary: He can cling to walls, stretch vertically, drop from the ceiling, hurl pieces of himself, split himself multiple times, and even appear from the ground, thanks to his partially liquid qualities—"though I'm technically a colloid," says Slime from his home in Los Altos, CA. "People ask me if my strength really increases with a palette swap," he continues, "and the answer is, yes. If I consume something red like strawberries or human blood, I get stronger." He frequently appears thousands of times in a single game, most often under his given name (Slime), other times as Goo, and sometimes—for reasons even Slime cannot explain—under the moniker of a tasty dessert such as Flan or Pudding. "I confess, I have a major weakness for key lime pie, which is kinda unfortunate since my green form is pretty lame."

Occasionally, such as in the career-defining NES RPG Dragon Warrior, Slime has had to wear a set of prop eyes for hours at a time to make him look more personable. "I don't mind," says Slime. "I understand that amorphous isn't 'cute,' but I have to concentrate really hard to prevent myself from dissolving and digesting them. I probably go through 10 sets of those things a day. It's just my nature."

Your Top Five

The Top Five Underappreciated Video-Game Supporting Characters according to Mason Dixon of Providence, Rhode Island:

5. Crows: Every time there are crows in a game, they're always annoying and hard to kill. This also goes for eagles, bats, and, of course, floating Medusa heads.
4. Man-Eating Plant: Popularized in Super Mario Bros., this guy has shown up recently in Whiplash, Mario Kart: Double Dash, and Tak and the Power of Juju. He's one of the more instantly recognizable characters in games.
3. Fireball That Bounces Up and Down: Every lava level has this guy, the little fireball that jumps up and down in the lava. One of the hardest-working characters in gaming today.
2. Spiky Platform-Orbiting Creature: This guy is in every single game, just circling platforms and offering its spiky self for you to land on if you time your jumps improperly.
1. Blocking Guy: There's always one guy in every group of monsters whose distinguishing characteristic is that he blocks from time to time. I am a huge fan of this guy's work.

Interview with the Zombie

And a "Reeaaarghhhhfftt" to you, too, sir!

As one of the busiest actors in the industry these days, the zombie is a hot property. Featured in games from Castlevania to Resident Evil and in more complex roles in Eternal Darkness and Viewtiful Joe, this is one fella who really gets around—albeit very, very slowly. We sat down with the zombie to find out what drives this mindless mass of decaying flesh.

Code Vault*: What was it like for you growing up as the son of a poor sharecropper in Louisiana?
Zombie: (festering) Mooraaaaaaaaghhhugagg.

CV*: Did that humble beginning affect your desire for video-game stardom?
Z: Guuurghhhhhhhhhrrrrrrff (drools on feet).

CV*: It's been said that you are a serious student of the craft. How have such Method actors as Slime and Ball with Mouth influenced your work?
Z: (bleeding everywhere) Zzzzerrrrrffffff ffeh fffeh brrrearrrrghhhh.

CV*: What about your charitable work for Actors Against Shotgun Blasts to the Head?
Z: Grrrunchhhhmmmmmmmrrrrrrrrughffffffffft (belches fly).

Please Wait would like to thank the zombie for taking time to speak with us before heading off to get blown up by a grenade.

Lifetime Achievement: Abobo

You're mighty ugly, Abobo, but we salute you.

It's sad how many gamers these days don't know the contributions of Abobo to the hobby. Though he only appeared in the Double Dragon games, Abobo was an inspiration to a generation of gamers and designers for whom the giant, shirtless wrestling juggernaut was the height of side-scrolling brawler design. While there were tougher enemies in Double Dragon, whenever you saw Abobo crash through walls, you knew you were in for something special. Whether it was regular Abobo, African-American Abobo, or the strangely compelling Green-Skinned Abobo, this one man redefined mindless punching games to this very day.

Abobo was born at a very early age, and from the beginning, his football-shaped head and giant pectoral muscles made all the other kids point and laugh. Even in high school, his best friend, Throwing-Knife-Wielding Thug, talked behind his massive, shirtless back when Abobo wasn't around. Having no friends, Abobo turned to acting, from which he knew he could get the attention he so richly deserved. Having been beaten out by Chuck Norris for a role in Return of the Dragon, Abobo set his sights on the nascent world of video-game acting, where he went on to become a star.

These days, having left his acting days behind, Abobo runs a successful travel agency in Irvine, CA, where he helps people escape their lives in a more literal way. Please Wait is proud to award the Lifetime Achievement award to Abobo for breaking through walls in more ways than one.

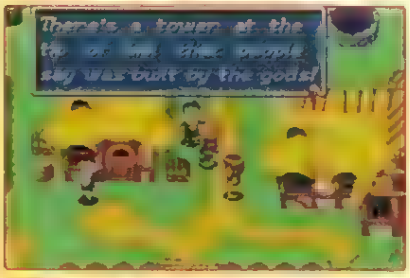
Confessions of a Role-Playing-Game Extra



In Golden Sun, Angry-Looking Man in Red Garment told visitors to Biliban about a far-away, ominous, ancient ruin shrouded in legend

Role-playing-game extras are privy to lots of rumors, perhaps more than any other peripheral character or enemy in any other game. We cornered Angry-Looking Man in Red Garment, a townsman who's been in dozens of RPGs since long before Square merged with Enix, and asked him a few questions.

Code Vault*: What's the strangest thing you ever heard while working in a role-playing game?
Angry-Looking Man: If you collect enough Green Shards, I hear the smith in Woodtown will make something special.

CV*: Is it true that in the original script for Final Fantasy VII, Aeris wasn't supposed to die and that Cloud had her written out because he thought she was a scene hog?
AM: I hear there's a strange sound coming from the cave by Vermillion Manor at night. I think...

CV*: More.
AM: ...there's a werewolf inside

CV*: Any juicy dirt on the next Final Fantasy game that you can share?
AM: If you collect enough Green Shards, I hear the smith in Woodtown will make something special.

CV*: What's this "secret project" you're working on with Sega? Another Phantasy Star Game?
AM: I hear there's a strange sound coming from the cave by Vermillion Manor at night. I think...

CV*: Thank you for your time.
AM: ...there's a werewolf inside.

Manhunt

You've survived all of the director's "Scenes," and now it's time for some payback! All that's standing between you and your nemesis is a team of heavily armed bodyguards and Piggsy—a thing with serious social problems, self-esteem issues, and a Chainsaw. By Major Mike

THE END

Deliverance

Piggsy

To defeat Piggsy, you must perform three executions on him (you lose your weapon after each attack, so you have to find a new one). After the third successful execution, Piggsy will flee.

You can find Piggsy up the ramp in an area past the door he saws open When you see Piggsy, throw a Brick at him so he moves into the next area. Take back the Brick you just threw at Piggsy.

Follow Piggsy up the long staircase When you reach the top, position yourself so the grate in the floor is between you and Piggsy, and then throw the Brick.

Piggsy rushes you, but then he gets upset and returns to the area where you first threw the Brick at him. Return to that location, and get Piggsy to chase you to the top of the long staircase again. Piggsy is in hot pursuit now, so get him to stand on that grate for a second, fateful time.

Starkweather

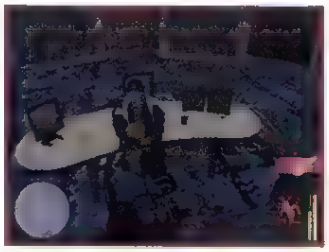
After Piggsy's demise, you must take out five of Starkweather's personal guards. Use the Chainsaw on the door, and a cinema that shows the guards leaving Starkweather's control room begins. After the cinema, you regain control of Cash.

Immediately run forward, go up the ramp, go up the stairs, and then head down the next ramp and hide in the shadowy recess to the left. Be sure to press □ or × so the Chainsaw stops making noise.

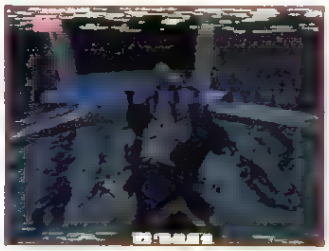
You execute enemies with the Chainsaw the same way you would with any other weapon. Isolate one of the guards, take him out, and then take his Defender Mark I rifle.

Stalk the other guards and take them out with head shots; don't forget to reload your weapon each time you take out a guard and to collect his rifle. The last guard should be at the top of the stairs facing away from you.

After the last guard is gone, re-collect the Chainsaw, return to the wooden door at the top of the stairs, and saw through it. If you're low on health, be sure to find some more before you return to the wooden door at the top of the stairs.



Once inside the control room, stalk the director. When you pinpoint his location, lock on to him and charge toward him with the Chainsaw's blade turning. Starkweather is armed with a .38 Revolver, so attack swiftly. You can only use the Chainsaw for this final confrontation



After Starkweather's "final cut," the game ends. Be sure to watch to the very end—even after the lengthy credit sequence. CV
